

LITTLE ORE TONNAGE TAX TALK HEARD AT PRESENT ABOUT THE LEGISLATURE

Many Who Studied the Question Have Changed Their Minds.

Payment of Special Assessments by Railroads Is Discussed.

Investigation of the Packing Trust to Start Next Tuesday.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first hearing before the house committee on taxes and tax laws on the various tonnage tax bills now pending will take place next Wednesday evening. It is the report of the tax commission is printed and in the hands of the members by this time.

This hearing is merely preliminary, and the advocates of the tonnage tax system will be given a chance to air their views. The hearing, if it is held, will not be final and conclusive, and it is probable that full public hearings will be arranged later at which the iron mining interests and others concerned will be given full opportunity to present their side of the question.

There is very little tonnage tax talk about the legislature at present. The fixed advocates of this system, busy, of course, preparing their fight for the bill, but the average member is taking little interest in the matter, and on the whole there seems to be little probability of any tonnage tax bill in any form that discriminates against the northeastern part of the state will be enacted.

The state is interested in this con-

BOTH SIDES ARE RALLIED

Anti-Stephenson Men Say He Still Lacks Votes.

Declare Senator's Strength in Wisconsin Legislature No Stronger.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—The Wisconsin legislature met again in joint session today, to try to elect a successor to United States Senator Isaac Stephenson. His opponents among the Democrats and La Follette Republicans, still contend that he would be able to muster no more votes than he did yesterday, 66, and that he would again fail at least one vote short of the requisite number.

Assemblyman Braddock, during the discussion of the primary investigation, said that soon after he came out for Assemblyman M. C. Ring, a former legislative lobbyist brought out a candidate for the Republican nomination for member of the assembly and that such candidate stated that the expenses of the campaign "were no concern of his." Mr. Ring, Mr. Braddock stated, also visited George Crothers in Clark county, and when the publisher stated he was opposed to Stephenson, Ring is alleged to have said that Stephenson was an old man and could not do much harm, and that Crothers might just as well have $3,000 as $500.

FASHIONABLE DISTRICT DARK; FIRES START AS WIRES BREAK

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Total darkness, save for the flames of three burning houses and the streams of vicious blue sparks shooting from every water pipe and electric fixture, descended upon the fashionable Calhoun boulevard district of Minneapolis last night, as the result of the breaking and crossing of the primary and secondary feed wires of the Minneapolis General Electric company.

The break occurred at Calhoun boulevard and Thirty-fourth street, and the district affected included all that lying

GIRL SALE IS CHARGED

White Slave Contract Near Fort Snelling Includes Forty.

St. Paul Law Enforcement League Takes Up the Matter.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—That a St. Paul employment agency has entered into a contract to supply forty girls to certain resorts, not far from Fort Snelling and that the "white slave" traffic extends throughout the country district adjacent to St. Paul, are charges which will be investigated by the St. Paul Law Enforcement league. At a meeting of the league last night committees were appointed to make the investigations. Members of the committee claim to have obtained information about the contract for the forty girls from a reliable source. They claim to have the name of the agency which entered into the contract.

TELEGRAPH OPERATORS

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 29.—The telegraph operators of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern railways today sent to the Canadian parliament a petition for an eight-hour day and no overtime. This is a preliminary step to bringing pressure to bear on the railways.

HOUSE FAVORS MAKING
Office of Public Examiner Elective.

Another Political Move, to Frame Workingmen's Compensation Bill.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this morning passed the Nolan bill, making the office of public examiner elective instead of appointive, as at present, after a futile fight to have the bill referred back to the committee on banks and banking, for public hearings. While the measure is commonly looked upon as a partisan attempt to curtail the appointing power of the governor, the vote was by no means strictly partisan.

WOULD GREATLY ALTER THE LAW

Francis Lynde Stetson's Committee Reports Bearing on Corporations.

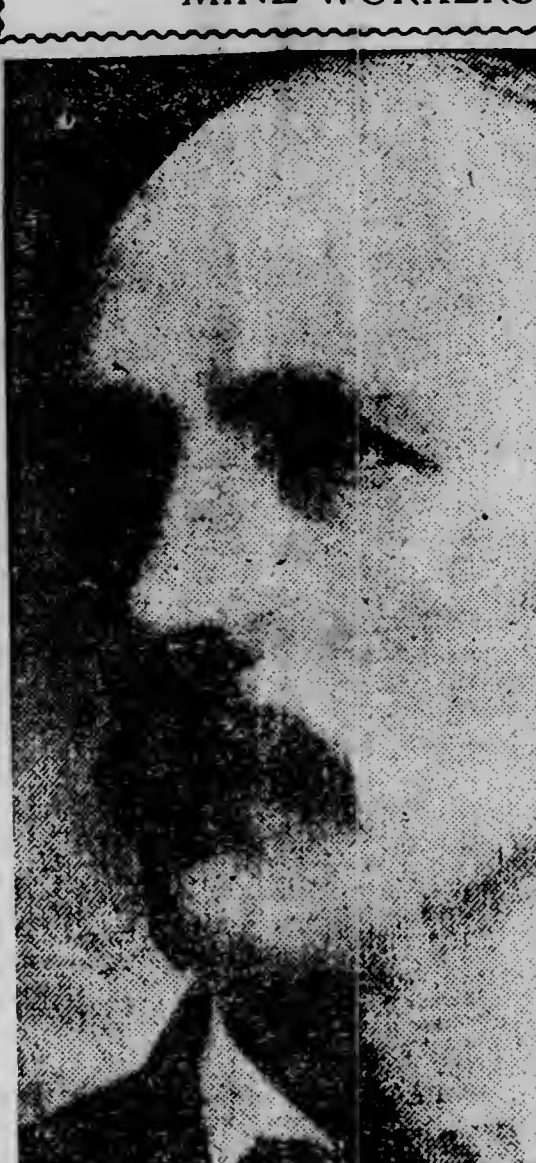

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Radical changes in the corporation laws are favored in a report submitted today by the committee of corporation law of which Francis Lynde Stetson is the chairman. The committee has prepared and caused to be submitted to the legislature the amendments to the corporation laws, permitting the formation of companies having capital stock divided into shares of any value in money, and has issued stock certificates representing merely corporation interests in the entire capital stock, without the implication of any nominal or par value in money. This is sometimes called stocks without the dollar mark.

The abolition of money denomination of shares, the report says, we believe deprives those who promote corporations of the advantages, real or seeming, of the exaggerated capitalization which undoubtedly is possible under existing laws, and at the same time compels honest investors to fix their attention upon actual values. The amendment would not apply to corporations now existing.

France, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—When Otto Hurlum reached the home of his neighbor, Elmer Bangle, yesterday afternoon, he was startled to find the body of Bangle lying in the yard, with a shot wound through the head. Bangle was one of the best known and highly respected young men in Hoberg, Ottertail county. Death is believed to have been accidental.

House Members Vote to Pass Around Printing Jobs.

Nelson Would Kill Bill Amending Anti-Trust Law.

Washington, Jan. 29.—After a long discussion, the house of representatives has adopted the conference report on the bill providing for the taking of the thirteenth census. The most important action in connection with the measure was the acceptance of the senate provision providing for the printing of census reports by private concerns, on the score of cost. In urging this proposition, Mr. Tawney of Minnesota charged that the influence of certain organizations was responsible for the high cost of printing in the government establishment. He said that members need not be frightened about the government printing office having plenty of work to do.

Wind Attains a Velocity of Sixty Miles an Hour.

Thermometer Drops Below Zero—Telegraph Wires Are Down.

Railroad Trains Delayed and Street Railway Service Disorganized.

A genuine blizzard swept down on Duluth last night, and this morning the wind was blowing sixty miles an hour. A velocity of sixty-six miles was reached at times.

Telegraph and telephone service is seriously affected; railroad trains delayed; the street railway service is with difficulty being maintained; and business generally is disorganized by the fierce wind and snowstorm.

It is the most severe storm that has ever visited Duluth in January, and one of the most violent wind storms the head of the lakes has ever experienced in the history of the weather bureau. At 8 o'clock this morning the wind reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour, according to the weather bureau records. The thermometer steadily fell. At 8 o'clock this morning it was 2 below zero, and at 1 o'clock it was 26 below zero, below by tonight.

The weather man expects the wind to gradually die down, but he is unable to give any well founded forecast as all the telegraph reports have been shut off. Not a single weather report had been received at 9 o'clock this morning, by which time nearly every station in the country should have been heard from. This makes it impossible for Mr. Richardson to prepare any forecast, except one based largely on guess work, and yesterday's reports. He expects, however, that the wind will fall this afternoon and the temperature will go to 10 below zero tonight.

Up to noon not more than half an inch of snow had fallen.

Duluth is faring better than many other cities in regard to telegraph service.

"We are in fairly good shape," said Manager Crane of the Western Union office this morning. "The main storm seems to be between St. Paul and Chicago. We will have two wires in Chl."

SOUTH IS HARD HIT

Furious Storm Practically Isolates the State of Texas.

Kentuckians Are Injured by Ferocity of the Gale.

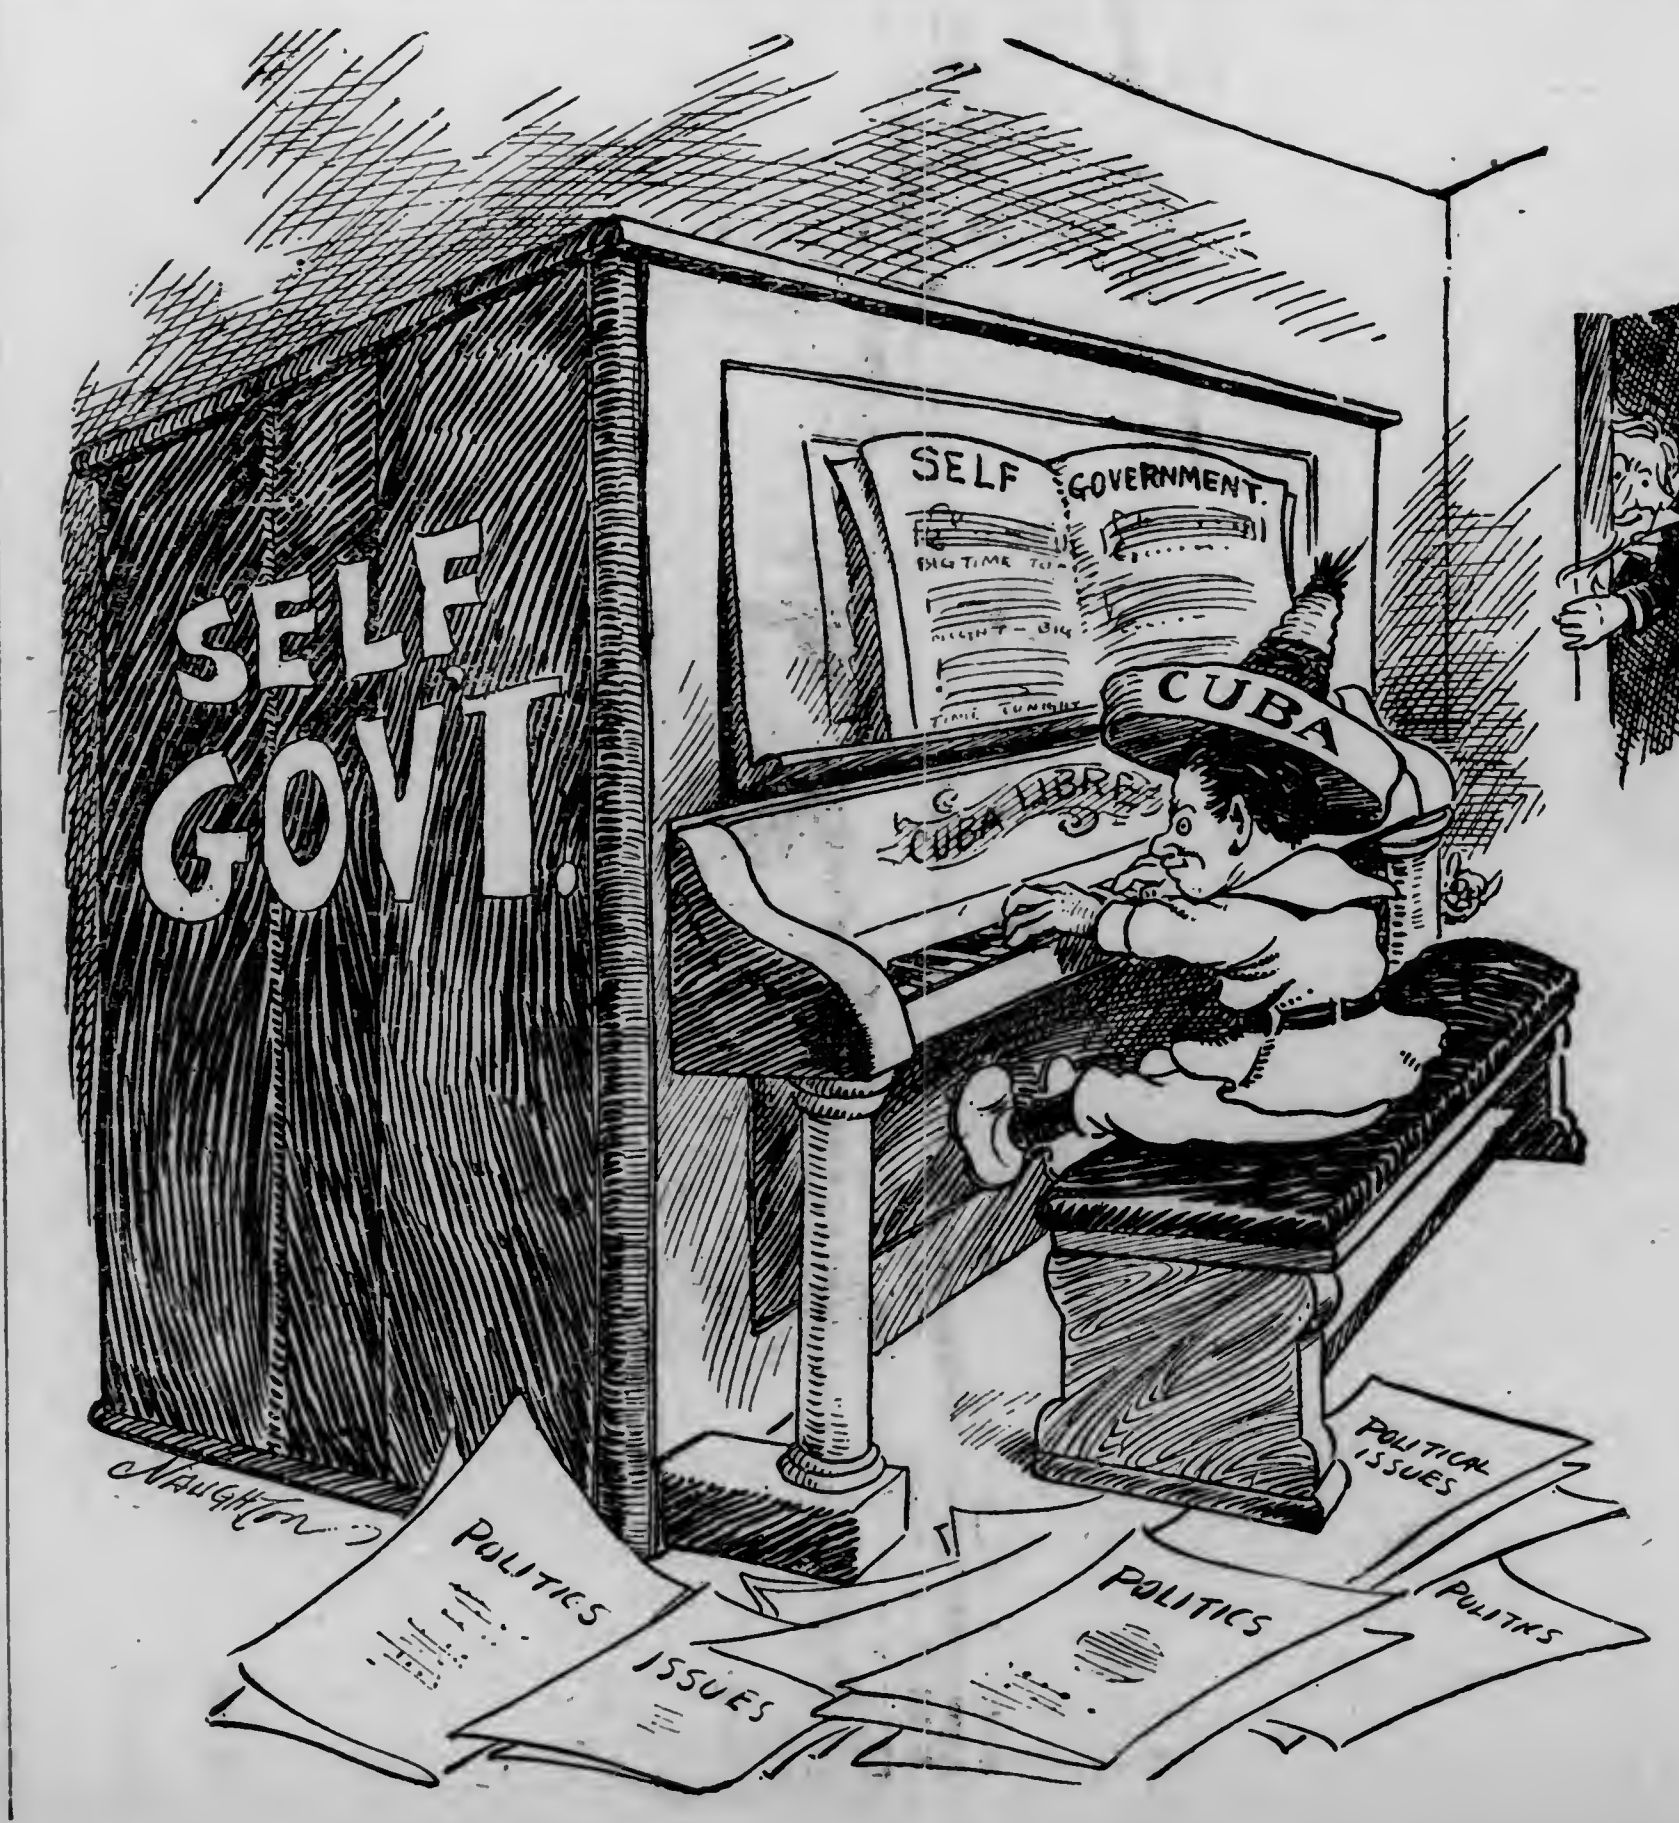

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 29.—A high wind formed a combination late last night and today that caused interference with wire communication in many places, and practically isolated the state of Texas. At some points in Texas and Oklahoma the wind blew at the rate of seventy miles an hour. At Fort Worth, Texas, awnings and signs were torn away and small buildings demolished.

Several persons are reported to have been injured in Louisville. The wind decreased about two hours later until it had a velocity of forty-five miles an hour. Wire facilities were hampered in all directions. High winds prevailed in Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville and Chattanooga. The storm at this last named point reached a gale. No serious damage is reported. Many trains are late and communications hampered.

Mercury Drops Forty Degrees.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 29.—An electrical rainstorm prevailed early this morning, which turned into a blizzard, accompanied by a forty-mile wind. Long distance telephone communication to Kansas City and other points was resorted to with fair success. The storm is accompanied by a drop forty degrees in the temperature.

Messages from Kansas City by long distance telephone say that a sixty-mile wind blew down telegraph poles. Signs, awnings and other debris of every description was blown along the streets. The wind was accompanied by a fall in temperature to 20 below zero.

WEATHER—Cold wave with temperatures of from 10 to 15 degs. below zero.

CHILDREN WERE DISMISSED

All the Public Schools Were Closed at Noon.

Supt. Denfeld closed the city schools at noon today on account of the severe storm.

The attendance at the institutions of learning this morning was very light. Most parents were timid about sending the youngsters out in the storm, and those who did venture forth to brave the storm's fury for the sake of education, had a hard time indeed. The little tots were blown hither and thither; some of them did not reach school at all. Those who did had a hard time and had to stop many times on their way to gain their breath. There were a few who suffered frost-

The young couple were obliged to spend some time in the city battle, before the parent relented.

CLAIMS SHE IS INNOCENT

Mrs. Hargraves Says She Knew Nothing of Roomer's Money.

Woman Accused of Theft of $56 in Her Boardinghouse.

Charged with taking $56 found by the chambermaid in Charles A. Smith's room in her boarding house, the Midland, at 219 West Second street, and keeping it, Mrs. Minnie Hargraves is on trial in district court under an indictment charging grand larceny in the second degree. The trial was started this morning and the case will probably go to the jury this afternoon before the adjournment for the week.

Mr. Smith and Detective Irvine and Schutte were on the stand this morning. They told their side of the affair and the story told them by Mrs. Pine, the chambermaid, who found the money. Smith said that he had roomed at the Midland about a week before he lost the money. On the night of Nov. 9, he went to bed and put his money under the pillow. In the morning he went out and forgot to take it, returning in a short time and finding the room cleaned up, the bed made and the money missing.

He said he reported his loss to Mrs. Hargraves and she said she did not know anything about it. Neither did she know the chambermaid's name or where she lived. Smith learned the woman's name from Mrs. Hargraves' son and that night he and Detective Schutte and Irvine visited Mrs. Pine. The story told by the woman was that she found the money in the room and took it down to Mrs. Hargraves' room. She said Mrs. Hargraves counted the money, said there was $56 in the bill, and then put it in a molasses jug.

Mr. and Mrs. Pine, the two detectives who returned to the Midland, and Mrs. Hargraves still maintained that she knew nothing of the money. The molasses jug in which Mrs. Pine said the money was placed, was said to have been dropped there and the tax amendment goes into the state constitution, together with the good roads amendment.

LAST CHAPTER IN THE APPEAL

Mandate of the Supreme Court on Tax Amendment Case Filed.

The last chapter in the appeal of the Duluth Real Estate exchange from the judgment of the state canvassing board of 1906 in declaring the "wide open" tax amendment carried, was written this morning, when the mandate of the supreme court, reversing the decision of the lower court and declaring the "wide open" tax amendment carried, was filed with the appeal from the decision on the good roads amendment.

The appeal in the tax amendment case was decided upon by the supreme court, but the mandate, which is the final judgment has just been handed down. An effort was made by the attorneys for the Duluth people interested to secure a rehearing, but the motion was denied. The matter has been dropped there and the tax amendment goes into the state constitution, together with the good roads amendment.

TO PUT LID ON SALE OF MALT

Three Bills Introduced in the North Dakota Legislature.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the statute as it now exists, the sale of malt cannot be prevented in North Dakota, although it has been frequently shown that this beverage is clearly intoxicating, and that its sale is contrary to the spirit of the prohibition law. Shortcomings in the definition of what shall constitute intoxicating liquors within the meaning of the law is responsible for the inability of the officials to prosecute the malt dealers at the present time. Three bills have been introduced to remedy the defect. Representative Ferdinand Lucke of Grand Forks and Representative George A. McCrea of Pembina county are sponsors of house bills, while in the senate a bill defining intoxicating liquors has been introduced by Senator Gunderson of Nelson county.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Charles P. Taft has entered a vigorous denial of the charges of Representative Rainey of Illinois, that he was in any way identified with the Panama canal purchases. In a telegram to Rainey, Mr. Taft declares as unfounded the statements associating him with the transaction. J. Angus Shaw, late editor of the Press Publishing company, which publishes the New York World, has been subpoenaed and will appear with others before the federal grand jury, which resumed its sittings today to continue its investigation into the Panama canal purchases. It is believed that the grand jury will accept Rainey's proposition to appear as a witness against the World, and that the grand jury of the country of New York is preparing to take the matter in hand.

STEEL MERGER CORRESPONDENCE IS GIVEN OUT

RESPONSIBILITY FOR BRINGING OUT MERGER EVIDENCE IS PLACED UPON CULBERSON BY HIS COLLEAGUES

Washington, Jan. 29.—Responsibility for bringing out evidence relating to the merger of the United States Steel corporation has been thrown upon Senator Culbertson by his colleagues on the special committee of the senate judiciary committee, which was named to investigate the matter. The committee will not be able to obtain the files until the files are in the possession of the committee.

JOY WORK And the Other Kind.

Did you ever stand on a prominent corner at an early morning hour and watch the throngs of people on their way to work? Noting the number who were forcing themselves along because it meant their daily bread, and the others cheerfully and eagerly pursuing their way because of love of their work? It is a fact that one's food has much to do with it. As an example: If an engine has poor oil, or a boiler is fired with poor coal, a bad result is certain, isn't it? Treating your stomach right is the key to the health of the arch of health's temple and you will find that the most nourishing and beneficial food you can use. We have thousands of testimonials, real genuine little heart throbs, from people who simply tried Grape-Nuts. If you have never tried Grape-Nuts it's worth while to give it a fair impartial trial. Remember there are millions eating Grape-Nuts every day because you can keep well, and with the brain well nourished work is a joy. Read "The Road to Wellville" in every package—There's a Reason.

this information as the president may direct will be made public. The attorney general shows that this limitation is in conformity with the fourth amendment to the constitution, was recognized and commented upon in the debates in congress preceding the adoption of the law, and was in accordance with settled departmental practice.

He calls attention to the two instances in the prosecution of the beef trust and in the prosecution of the tobacco trust, in which his own representatives were denied access to the records in the custody of the commissioner of corporations; quotes an opinion of Chief Justice, then attorney general, to the effect that separate resolutions of either house of congress have no legal effect to constrain the action of the president or the heads of departments; and points out that, under the terms of section 8 of the same act, either house may obtain information by a resolution directing an investigation and report by the secretary of commerce and labor.

The attorney general adds that it will be proper for the commissioner to immediately refer the matter to the president, transmit to him, if practicable, the documents in question, and thus enable him to determine what portion of the data desired would be suitable for disclosure by communication to the sub-committee. He states that subpoena, strictly construed, requires the production only of documents relating to both corporations, not of documents relating to either, but he says he gives his advice, without regard to any question of mere form.

QUIET WEEK ON STREET

Midwinter Dullness Is Hanging Over Commission Row.

Butter and Eggs Firm—Oranges Plentiful and Bananas Lower.

The week has been a quiet one in the produce market, with few variations in prices from last week. Butter and eggs, the two commodities which have been furnishing the most interest on the street for the past few weeks, have remained quite steady. Eggs are a trifle higher than they were the first of the week, however. Receipts are still very light and the demand has been very firm. Fresh eggs are 34 to 37 cents a dozen, whereas a few days ago they were quoted at 35 cents. Storage eggs are still 30 cents a dozen. Storage stocks are getting a little low, and if the stiffness in the fresh egg market continues, further advances in the storage variety may be expected. They have remained stationary at 30 cents for quite a while, but the dwindling stocks in the face of a good demand, are bound to bring about a rise, calculated to make the market for eggs, or butter either, any easier. Creamery butter is 34 to 35 cents a pound and other grades are firm at the same prices which prevailed last week. In the fruit market, lemons are firm at 44 a box. The earthquake in Italy is liable to prevent heavy importations of lemons from that country this year, a circumstance which is likely to cause an advance in the California crop. Speaking of lemons, the specimen from Jack Skalla's fruit farm at Towson, Md., exhibited in the Victor company's window, attracted a lot of attention on the street during the week. The lemon was full grown and a ripe, healthy yellow. Mr. Skalla's crop is probably not very large, but what there is of it seems to be very fine. It is quite likely, however, that in spite of the excellent condition of the crop, the price will continue to order fruit from Michigan street houses. Receipts of California oranges have been large and the fruit is better in appearance and quality than at any time this season. Prices are about unchanged from last week. The banana market is easier. As predicted in this column a short time ago, the fruit is better in appearance and quality than at any time this season. Prices are about unchanged from last week. Bananas are quoted now at 3 1/2 cents a pound. Malaga grapes are about the most expensive fruit offered on the street. They cost 48 a keg, wholesale. Receipts have been adequate this week to care for the demand at the same prices which were quoted a week ago. Florida is now sending to market her second crop of pineapples and they are superior to the first, if anything. They are quoted at 23 a case. Cranberry raisins are becoming light although there has been no barge in price from last week. For nearly three months, the berries have been stationary at $14 a barrel, which by the way, is the highest price which has been asked for cranberries in Duluth in several years. Apples are coming from the West and are selling here at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.25 per box. Receipts are mostly from Idaho, Colorado and California. The New York apples are still in the market in goodly numbers and prices for them are unchanged. Potatoes continue firm at 80 cents a bushel. Sweet potatoes are still in the market at $1.75, but the season for them is about over. Spanish onions are in good demand at $2 per crate. The poultry market has undergone no disturbance during the last few days. Receipts have not been exceeding large, but there has been nothing unusual in the demand, so that local stocks were ample to care for the trade at unchanged prices. The pork market has an easy tone and other meats are steady.

HEARREN TO MR. TAWNEY

The special session, he said, was near at hand. "There is not an excuse," he contended, "for any man's voting against this proposition on the ground that the labor organization has not been organized. Every man in the government office, he said, would be kept at work just the same, while the private printers would receive the benefit of the legislation. It is purely a matter of business common sense," he declared.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota, on behalf of the senate committee on the judiciary, has presented a report to the senate recommending the indefinite postponement of a bill amending the Sherman anti-trust act. "To amend the act," he suggested by this bill, would be to entirely emasculate the act, and all purposes rendered futile as a remedial statute. Criminal prosecutions would not lie, and the act would be a dead letter. The act as it exists is clear, comprehensive, certain and highly remedial. It practically covers the field of federal jurisdiction and is in every respect a model law. To destroy or undermine the act at the present juncture, when combinations are on the increase, and appear to be growing more numerous, would be a calamity to the public, would be a calamity.

To Fight Land Frauds. Secretary Garfield of the interior department appeared before a subcommittee of the house committee on the judiciary to urge the insertion of an item in the sundry civil appropriation bill, appropriating $100,000 for the fight on land frauds.

He told the committee the present appropriation of $500,000 should be doubled. During his administration, he said, the work of the department had been brought up to date and he added the information that this accomplishment had resulted in the accumulation of a better number of cases in which fraud is suspected. He asked for the appropriation of $1,000,000 to enable the department to investigate and prepare these cases for prosecution. The secretary of agriculture will be enabled to conduct experiments to determine the practicability of making paper material from corn stalks, if a paper material is made, it will be a great benefit to the agriculture of the country. The bill, which was introduced by Representative Stanley of Kentucky appropriates $30,000 to be used by the secretary of agriculture to conduct experiments put in operation and improve the processes now in use and to purchase a site near Henderson, Ky., erect buildings and purchase the necessary apparatus.

Army Appropriation Bill. Consideration of the army appropriation bill was begun in the house. As reported, the bill carries an appropriation of $88,896,906, which is $5,072,281 less than the estimate. Mr. Hall of Iowa had the measure in charge.

Senator Beveridge has introduced a bill to amend the employers' liability act, to meet the objections raised against it by labor organizations. It is not the intention of Beveridge to press the bill for passage at the present session, but it is understood the labor organizations will ask Taft to endorse the bill in his first message.

Responding to Senator Culbertson's resolution, calling upon the attorney general for correspondence relating to the alleged violation of the Sherman law by the sugar trust, in connection with the failure of the Real Estate Trust company of Philadelphia, President Roosevelt has sent to the senate a special message and all correspondence relating to the case.

The message was ordered printed and to be upon the table. It is expected that Senator Culbertson will call it up later and submit some remarks based upon the correspondence. A letter to the president, transmitting the correspondence, Attorney General Bonaparte wrote: "I am aware of no reason why the papers should not be made public."

CAN BUILD
BIG DITCHLitigation Over Todd and Douglas County Ditch is Ended.Opponents to Big Undertaking Are Beaten in the Courts.

Long Prairie, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Baxter has decided that Judicial Ditch No. 2, affecting lands in Todd and Douglas counties, is to be constructed. The decision concludes litigation covering a period of two years and ends a case that has gone to the supreme court.

The construction of the proposed ditch has been bitterly fought, especially by farmers in Todd county. The ditch is to be an immense affair, draining sixty miles of territory, being forty miles in length and costing between $70,000 and $80,000. The ditch will empty into Otter Lake.

This lake is ten miles long and correspondingly wide. So great a volume of water is it expected to turn into the lake that farmers residing eight and ten miles down the lake were among those who were fiercest in their opposition to the construction of the ditch.

Judge Baxter's decision wipes out most of the assessed benefits to Todd county lands, and in this respect pleasing to the ones who have most seriously objected to the ditch. The ditch is being advertised this week. It will be the biggest ditch in Northern Minnesota, excepting only those in the Red River valley.

Stricken After Eloquent and Successful Plea.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Stricken with heart disease while making a plea in behalf of a client, Eben Thompson, one of the oldest members of the Hennepin county bar, fell to his knees in Judge John Day's courtroom.

yesterday afternoon. He was assisted to a chair and later taken to the judge's chambers, where he recovered sufficiently to go to his home. Attorney Thompson had been speaking for an hour and twenty minutes, and the strain caused his collapse. His efforts were not in vain, however, for the jury late last night returned a verdict declaring his client, Daniel Wallace, not guilty.

ing Row at Akeley.

Akeley, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Insane through jealousy, Eugene Wilhelm, who had been separated from his wife and family for a few days, returned the other morning and finding one of the boarders sitting at the table eating breakfast, imagined all was not right and ordered him out of the house. The wife became alarmed and in her excitement took a revolver out of the cupboard drawer and fired at Wilhelm. He was hit in the hand, drawing a scream and falling through the hand. Wilhelm, who also had a gun, fired point blank at Wilhelm, the boarder, hitting him in the mouth, but the bullet did not penetrate further. The whole matter will be aired before the court this afternoon.

COUNTERFEIT COIN IS CIRCULATED AT AKELEY.

Akeley, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a large amount of counterfeit dollars and quarters in circulation in this city. Parties have presented the pieces at the postoffice, bank and depot, where they were informed of the nature of the money they were attempting to pass. The dollar is a crude imitation of a silver dollar, and has a fairly good ring. It is made of a soft metal, mostly lead or zinc or aluminum. Various dyes are used on the pieces. They are much lighter than a regular dollar and some thicker, and they have a greasy face. The quarters are much better made and it would not be difficult to pass them by their maker. There is a suspicion that the counterfeiters are at work in this immediate vicinity, and it is not unlikely that Uncle Sam's detectives will soon put in an appearance. If, indeed, they are not already on the scene.

Rainey Reads Telegram Denial Received From C. P. Taft.

Calls on Him to Also Cable Panama Republic.

Washington, Jan. 28.—As soon as he could get the floor today Representative Rainey of Illinois read to the house a telegram which he received from Charles P. Taft yesterday, in which the location of the president-elect denied that he has ever had any business association with William Nelson Cromwell or any interest at any time in the isthmus of Panama. In his message he asked Mr. Rainey to retract his statements regarding Mr. Taft which he made in his speech Tuesday.

Rainey said he had not the slightest desire to controvert the statement of Taft but that it was not necessary for him to retract anything he said in his speech, from which he quoted his reference to Mr. Taft.

"The country will be glad to know the isthmus is being used there without his consent," he said. "I desire to say, in this connection, that Mr. Taft could render a great service to his country by withdrawing his frequent public endorsements of William Nelson Cromwell. At the present time Cromwell and Farquhar are proceeding under certificates of good character given them in the past by the president-elect."

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY

West Duluth Department Had Four Runs During Day.

Number 5 fire hall, in West Duluth, was the busiest in the city, being called out to four fires. The first call came early in the morning and the department had hardly returned before it was called again to the State street, which is above the Duluth, Missabe & Northern tracks, and a long, hard pull up Fifty-fifth avenue west, in the face of the hurricane from over the hill. The fire there was a bad one, and the firemen were unable to check the spreading of the flames, and they had completely destroyed the house. When the task of saving the house was given up the firemen turned their attention toward preventing the flames from spreading to the house next door. It was a cold, hard piece of work up there on the unprotected hillside, with the wind blowing at sixty miles an hour.

Chickadee resided with his family in the house, which belonged to Mrs. Lena Kait of Milwaukee. The house was insured through the Scott & Sons company for $1,000.

It was at first thought that the fire had started in the kitchen, but the firemen were unable to check the flames, and they had completely destroyed the house. When the task of saving the house was given up the firemen turned their attention toward preventing the flames from spreading to the house next door. ## STEPHENSON TEST WAS

AGAIN FAILS A SUCCESS

Automatic Block for Control of Lowering Lifeboats.

Washington, Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Arthur C. Bouchard of Milwaukee, representing the Bouchard & Kilian Automatic Block company, was given an opportunity yesterday afternoon to test his automatic block for control of lowering lifeboats from vessels, aboard the U. S. S. Vigilant, on a ten-mile trip down the Potomac.

The tests of the automatic blocks, in which Capt. J. F. Simpson of Detroit assisted Capt. Bouchard, were witnessed by the United States board of supervising inspectors of steam vessels for this district and a committee of the Shipmasters' association of the Great Lakes. The tests were the most severe in character that could be devised from a vessel on an inland waterway. All demonstrations, some ten in number, were made while the Vigilant was playing through the water at the rate of about fifteen knots.

One test was particularly severe, consisting of lowering the forward end of the lifeboat when the steamer was under full headway and releasing both ends at once. The launch of the boat under these conditions was successfully made, the appliance working perfectly, the boat striking the water on an even keel. This particular demonstration, it was stated, indicated how the automatic block would work in a heavy sea.

Taking it all in all, the demonstration of the automatic lifeboat block was a revelation to those who witnessed the tests. Capt. Bouchard, who was accompanied by a committee of the shipmasters' association, together with some other things which had fallen into the hands of the officials.

ACTORS MOURN FOR COQUELIN
Body Will be Buried Where He Recited "Chanticleer."

Paris, Jan. 28.—The best known men and women in French drama, actors and actresses, gathered this afternoon at Port Aux Dames, a village near St. Germain, to render their last homages to the famous French actor, Benoit Coquelin, who died Jan. 27.

The body lay in the retreat for aged actors, founded by the munificence of Coquelin, and beneath the shadow of a statue of Moliere, of whom he was the faithful interpreter. Among the mourners was a saddened group of the actors and actresses with whom Coquelin had won his most celebrated triumph.

Coquelin's body was laid in a simple coffin in the salon of the home, which had been transformed into a mortuary chapel. The crest of the Coquelin family, a tall palm, in flower, reposed on the coffin. This was sent by the Association of Dramatic Artists. A catafalque, after who died Jan. 27. ## THE PASSING SHOW

Pedestrians Supply Plenty of Comedy for the Front Window Brigade Along Superior Street.

If you have ever sat in a theater and watched grotesque moving pictures, and you probably have, you may glean some idea of the different actions assumed by heroic pedestrians as they attempted to buffet the high wind on the Duluth streets today.

All along Superior street, windows were crowded with people who watched the misfortunes, grotesque and highly amusing most of them, of their unfortunate brothers and sisters whom business or some other urgent necessity compelled to brave the ravings of the weather.

As W. H. Alexander, the employment man, crossed Fourth avenue west, he was caught in the wind and started down Fourth avenue towards Michigan street. He gathered impetus as he progressed. From a gentle protesting against the rude propelling push of the wind, Mr. Alexander's gait degenerated into the furious, helter skelter, he was brought up with a sudden turn as he struck a sign at the end of the street, and sent him sprawling on the ground. He was a long time before he could get up.

Striding down Superior street, with a wooden muffer around his neck, a throat and a jaunty hat tucked low down upon his head, was a colored man with an ascetic and somewhat morose expression. He was no doubt, thinking of the supremacy of the black race from a physical standpoint. In view of Jack Johnson's emancipation of the colored brethren, when sudden gusts of wind drove the pugilistic ruminations from his head.

His jaunty hat was lifted high up on the wings of the wind. It soared, not unlike birds that embryo poets are wont to describe, and landed, out of sight of eye and out of reach upon the roof of the building that fronts the Brunswick hotel. The colored man gave one disgusted look for the hat was green, and gay, and natty, and proceeded up the street, barched and with quickened stride.

A man who was much the worse for certain libations he had partaken of, and with more fortitude than discretion, started to weather the gale that raged upon Superior street.

At the corner of Fifth avenue a cross gale struck him. He was twisted and spun like a cactus bush in a Kansas cyclone. Down Fifth avenue he was hustled, turning with the rapid revolving man might become entangled with some train on the crossing a block below.

The momentum of the muddled one turned the policeman, and, clasping arms like the sisters in the meeting scene of the "Two Orphans," the arm of the law and the breaker of the civic league constitution, whirled with the rapidity of a Swedish polka, doing fantastic steps and bizarre circles, until the more steady limbs of the officer brought the impromptu "dance of the Gale" to an end.

The man leaped after the refractory hat and gave chase with strenuous progress. He was a long time before he could get up.

He was almost upon the hat, when it gave a sudden turn, sharp and incisive, as the little wind turned in another direction, and sped back down the street in the direction of Fourth avenue. The dignified man turned and gave chase with strenuous progress. He was a long time before he could get up.

A woman leading a little tot, muffled to the eyes, let go of the infant's hand and started like an animated manikin down the street. By fast springing the woman managed to overtake the child as it paused perilously upon the brink of the entrance of a basement stairway.

Blankets were torn from patient horses; hats and caps were sent scurrying upon the wings of the wind; a pair of glasses were blown off the forehead of a near-sighted individual, leaving him groping helplessly in the blinding fury of the wind; people were carried sprinting madly down the street by the force of the wind. It was hard sledding in the face of the terrific gale and adventures were numerous.

SIGNS ARE BLOWN DOWN

Superior Street Was a Dangerous Thoroughfare During Day.

Windows Broken by Gale and Iron Railing Blows Down.

Superior street was a dangerous part of the city today.

During the middle of the day, when the wind was at its height, many signs were blown down and many windows crashed in.

The window of the Ten-cent store blew in shortly after the noon hour, but the accident had been expected and the contents of the show window removed, some hours before.

The sign over Gidding's drygoods store crashed to the ground and was broken into pieces.

The big Duluth clothing store was also blown down. Fortunately, all of the goods were under cover, so that no one was passing underneath, so that there was no serious damage.

Many smaller windows were broken in dwellings, and on First street many lights were broken and the bits of glass were carried down the hill by the wind. The iron railing around a cupola on the First Presbyterian church was blown off and fell to the street, breaking the pavement.

The sign over the Second street, was also overturned by the wind. Up to 2:30 o'clock no fatal accidents had been reported.

COURT PASSES ON FENSE SQUABBLE

Levandowski Retains Possession of Strip of Land in Dispute.

The fence which has been maintained as the boundary line between lots 14 and 16, block 10, Merchant's Park division of Duluth, since 1892, will remain right where it is, according to a decision handed down in district court this morning by Judge E. H. Egan.

The decision is the judgment of the court on a neighborhood row between Joseph Slavovskoi and John Levandowski, and is a victory for the latter.

The suit, which was heard Dec. 30, was brought by Slavovskoi, to determine the ownership of a strip of land about eighteen inches wide. He claimed he was the true owner of it and the portion of the fence gave Levandowski unlawful possession.

The land in question is located on the lower side of Third street, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth avenues west. Slavovskoi owns lot 12 and that part of lot 14 lying west of the fence. Levandowski owns lots 13 and 16 and the few inches on the east side of the fence. The court decided that since the fence has been recognized as the boundary line since 1892, it should be the boundary line, and Slavovskoi given nothing, while the costs of the case are assessed against him.

READY FOR JURY.

Evidence in Personal Injury Suit Has All Been Submitted.

The case of Frank Parnich against the Duluth Union Depot & Transfer company and the Great Northern Railroad company, which was placed on trial before Judge Dibel in district court yesterday, will go to the jury this afternoon. Parnich claims $6,400 for injuries he claims to have sustained while in the employ of the depot company as a car cleaner. A gas tank in a car of the Great Northern company exploded while he was cleaning it and he was burned about the head and face.

TELEPHONE POLES SNAP IN FIERCE HURRICANE

Not a Pole Left Standing in Five Blocks.

Roof Lifted From a Box Car by the Gale.

The telephone posts for five blocks along the lower side of Ramsey and Oneonta streets, were this morning snapped and like many toothpicks by the sixty-mile hurricane which was blowing.

Not a post on the lower side of the street for five blocks was left standing. Positions, supported by the street car cables, were blown down and the first "Y" at Thirty-ninth avenue west.

The first pole to go was in front of the Duluth Brass Works. Fifty-fifth avenue west and Ramsey street. Following its fall the others on that side of the street went down like ten pins.

A few of the poles on the opposite side of the street were snapped and hung slanting across the street in hazardous positions, supported by unbroken wires.

Where the poles were down, the stock trading in the Duluth Telephone company lay stretched out on the ground.

At Fifty-fifth avenue, where the poles were down, the wires were swinging back and forth constantly, sending out a sputtering string of sparks.

The connection over the old phone lines with West Duluth for a time was land at the church, where the great disadvantage of the fierce wind, blowing at the time, however, before all the damage is repaired.

The lumber yards of the Duluth Lumber company also suffered. The wind played havoc with the lumber piles, and the boards sailing in every direction, sometimes carrying a box car standing on the Northern Pacific tracks near the First street.

The iron railing around a cupola on the First Presbyterian church was blown off and fell to the street, breaking the pavement.

The sign over the Second street, was also overturned by the wind. Up to 2:30 o'clock no fatal accidents had been reported.

A NEW DOCK FOR WEST DULUTH

Will be Erected at Foot of Sixty-Second Avenue West.

At a meeting of the board of public works held this morning in the city hall, plans were made for the new West Duluth dock to be located at the foot of Sixty-second avenue west, near Waseca street.

Originally the plan was to build a dock 100 feet wide, but this idea has been abandoned and in its stead there are plans now under way for a dock gradually growing smaller near the ends until it is only fifty feet wide.

This, it is believed, will solve the West Duluth dock problem in a satisfactory manner. It will be built and before being accepted, will be submitted to the Duluth Harbor Commission for their approval.

Repairing Roadbed.

The Duluth Missabe & Northern is doing a great deal of work on its road from the docks to the city. The road is in several places there are sharp curves through rocky cuts, the sides of which prevent the engineers from seeing any distance ahead. These curves may be better seen.

The company is also replacing the old wooden ties on the hill as fast as they wear out, with new steel ties.

An Easy Grade.

The city engineers have surveyed a route between West Duluth and Proctor with a grade sufficiently low to permit a street car line being operated between the two points. They will submit their report at the meeting of the city council Monday evening.

The proposed highway runs up Highland street from Fifty-seventh avenue west, under the Missabe tracks and around Oneonta, connecting with the Keweenaw creek to the Morris-Thompson road.

Will Wed at Calumet.

Miss Laura Gross of Calumet, Mich., and Henry Houswood of West Duluth will be married Sunday at the First M. E. church of Calumet by Rev. H. G. Gross, father of the bride. Miss Gross is a niece of S. Gross, a mining man of this city, and both young people are well known in West Duluth. They will be at home in West Duluth after next Monday.

Medal Contest.

The pupils of the Ely school of West Duluth and the Franklin school are in a contest to see which can sell 1,000 Lincoln medals direct. The winning school will be awarded a bronze bust of Abraham Lincoln and the pupil selling the most medals will be presented with a silver medal.

Irving Tigers vs. Hibbing.

The Irving Tigers hockey team has arranged for a game with the Hibbing city team to be played Sunday at Hibbing. The game will be played at 2 o'clock. The Hibbing team will arrive in Duluth Monday morning. Those who will go to Hibbing are: Roy McRae, Stanley Meize, John Steinback, Ed Hollen, Al Black and Sam Abrahamson.

CASES OF INTEREST

INDICTMENT OF RAILWAY OFFICIAL FOR NEGLIGENCE OPERATION OF ROAD.—In People vs. Smith, 105 New York Supplement, 1082, it was held by the New York supreme court that the general manager of a railway company may be indicted for manslaughter, for the death of a person caused by the negligence or incompetency of a servant employed by him. Defendant claimed that in the operation of a large railway system it was impossible for a manager to inform himself of the experience and competency of employees. The court, however, overruled the demurrer to the indictment, and held it sufficient.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.—Constitutional provisions relating to initiative and referendum are construed as self-executing in the case of Stevens vs. Benson, 91 Pacific Reporter, 577. The supreme court of Oregon holds, however, that legislation providing a method of procedure is valid. Also that part of the law relating to form of petition is merely directory. In Palmer vs. Benson, 91 Pacific Reporter, 579, a distinction is drawn between the form of petition designated for the initiative and that for the referendum.

INJURIES CAUSED BY NEGLIGENCE OF SHIPPER TO STATE TRUE WEIGHT OF GOODS.—In Hanna vs. Pitt, 106 New York Supplement, 145, defendant delivered to a piece of machinery, under the representation that its weight would not exceed 5,000 pounds. The machinery, however, weighed 19,000 pounds. Plaintiff alleges that, by reason of the misrepresentation, the steamship company attempted to unload it with machinery unable to stand the strain, and that it broke, causing injuries to a riverboat, from whom the company was obliged to respond in damages. An action was instituted against the shipper to recover the sum so paid. The New York supreme court held that, as the weight of the machinery was as easily determined by the carrier as the shipper, recovery could be had.

ASSESSMENT WITHOUT NOTICE TO TAXPAYER.—In Central of Georgia Railway company vs. Wright, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 47, the validity of the section of the Georgia statute providing for the assessment by the

REPUTATION OF JUDGMENT OF

APPELLANT in the case of Commonwealth vs. Lombardi, 70 Atlantic Reporter, 122, alleged that a barber had been allowed to enter the jury room and shave the members of the jury after they had been sworn. The only word the barber uttered was "Next" at appropriate intervals. The supreme court of Pennsylvania remarked: "The day has gone by when jurors were kept without food or fire to coerce an unwilling agreement, and jurors are no longer regarded as wrongdoers who want only a chance to violate their duty; such situation should be regarded with common sense. . . . and a trial really fair and proper should not be set aside for the mere suspicion or appearance of irregularity shown to have none actual injury."

EVILUTION BY BEDBUGS.

An action was brought to recover a sum alleged to be due as rent under a lease for an apartment which had been abandoned. Defendant introduced evidence showing that the apartment, including the beds and closets, and all the rooms, was overrun with bedbugs and vermin of great industry and assiduity. The apartment was not under plaintiff's control, and no covenant against vermin appeared in the lease. The supreme court of New York in Jacobs vs. Moran, 110 New York Supplement, 208, held that the presence of bedbugs and vermin does not constitute eviction so as to justify abandonment of the premises by the tenant.

DOG AS A NUISANCE.

In McKinney vs. 110 New York Supplement, 562, defendant engaged an apartment. The apartment was not under plaintiff's control, and no covenant against vermin appeared in the lease. The supreme court of New York in Jacobs vs. Moran, 110 New York Supplement, 208, held that the presence of bedbugs and vermin does not constitute eviction so as to justify abandonment of the premises by the tenant.

FEATHER BED FOR MULE.

Columbus, Ind., Cor. Indianapolis News: A mule colt owned by Joseph Griner, a horse trader of this city, has received more than its share of the comforts of life. Griner bought the mule colt at Greensburg, and he had placed it in an inclosure than it made a dash for liberty. Running against a hitch was broken his right foreleg. A veterinary was called and placed the broken leg in a plaster cast. The colt reclined on downy beds of ease all the way, although it had to be held down at times. Once here the young mule was turned into pasture. It is thought it will recover.

VILLAGES ON THE RANGES DESIRE TO ANNEX SOME OF THE MINE LOCATIONS

Object Is to Add More Territory for Taxation Purposes.

Duluth Man Talks for Exempting Clubs From License Law.

Bill Regarding Mineral Deposits Under Lakes and Rivers Redrafted.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next week a bill intended to allow the incorporated communities of the iron ranges to take in the mining locations surrounding their present limits will come before the house.

It was introduced by Representative Joseph Austin of Chisholm, and was supported before the committee on municipal legislation by Attorney Otto Pelier and other iron range representatives.

The object is to bring some of the mines into the village territory so that they may help pay the local taxes and become subject to police supervision. The bill is general in its provisions, however, and applies to all the cities and villages of the state. It provides that any territory containing a population of not less than seventy-five people and not included in any incorporated city or village, but lying adjacent to some city or village, may be annexed by the vote of the people living in the territory concerned.

Proceedings looking to the taking in of such territory may be begun upon the petition of five or more voters living in the territory to be annexed.

NORWAY IN LIQUOR WAR

Manifesto Calls on Population to Combat Prohibition.

"Individual Liberty" Is Shouted—Women and Doctors Rally.

Christiania, Jan. 30.—There has been widely published throughout Norway the manifesto of an organization formed here by representatives from all parts of the country to combat the prohibition movement. It contains the signatures of 650 prominent men and women, seventy of them physicians.

It invites every community to organize against the aggressive prohibition party. Its program is to protect individual and commercial liberty, to oppose the misuse of intoxicating drinks, to erect asylums for drunkards and to spread the knowledge of sound principles of living, of health and hygiene.

The new organization will not be affiliated with any political party, but will prepare to fight the prohibitionists at all local elections. Its motto is "Liberty and Civilization Against Prohibition and Coercion."

A large portion of the press hailed it with enthusiasm as a practical instrument to free the country from prohibition.

CAR FALLS; MANY HURT

Lands at Ravine Bottom With Mass of Passengers.

Cincinnati Detective Chief Heroic—Two Deaths Are Likely.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 30.—The snowstorm and slippery tracks is given as the cause of an accident here today that may cost at least two lives, while several other persons were injured.

A College Hill car, with thirty-seven passengers, jumped the rails on Clifton avenue and tumbled down a steep embankment, landing at the bottom of a ravine, with a mass of shrieking men, women and children, caught under it or hurled from the platform or through windows. That some were not instantly killed is considered remarkable. The motorman, Jose E. Mulligan, is believed to be dying and Lieut. Poppe is probably fatally hurt.

To his bravery can be laid the injuries to Poppe, who is chief of detectives. He tried to help the motorman regain control of the car, and was working with the brake when the car jumped the track. Poppe stuck to his post as did the motorman. Poppe was formerly in the regular army, having been awarded a medal for bravery in Indian warfare, and is widely known. The seriously injured, Charles Escobar, bruised about body; Andrew Buson, back strained; Josephine Lawrence, leg crushed and back strained; Nellie Ford, badly bruised; Ed. Holm, head cut and back hurt; Fred Linden, bruised internally; Josephine, badly bruised; Nellie Fagin, badly bruised; Charles Hall, head badly cut; Agnes Hayes, back badly hurt.

Vice President Likely to Resign—Clashes With Gomez.

New Havana Police Chief "In Bad" With Americans.

President Ousts Many Officeholders for Political Purposes.

Havana, Jan. 30.—The relations between President Gomez and Vice President Zayas have become seriously strained over the appointment of a man to fill the post of chief of the secret police. The friction is so acute that Zayas has threatened to tender his resignation should Gomez insist on the appointment of his (Gomez's) nominee.

Jose Jerez, chief of police, has tendered his resignation in response to a demand of the secretary of government, Nicholas Alberdi, who explained that Gomez has appointed as his successor Ricardo Arango, former editor of El Reconstruido, for "political reasons."

Jerez as an official had an excellent reputation. He had been chief of the secret police for the last ten years. Senator Arango has been since the beginning of the first period of American intervention, the editor of many publications, most of which have been suppressed by the authorities. Under the first period of American intervention, a paper of which Arango was the editor, was suppressed for the attacks on the wife of Brig. Gen. William Ludlow, military governor, and other American women. Gen. Ludlow at this time ordered the police to get Arango, dead or alive. He was given immunity under a pledge that never again would he publish a newspaper in Havana.

Almost the entire force of the secret police has tendered resignations, declining to serve under Arango. A wholesale discharge of employees in all the departments of the government was made today and to those vacancies Liberal partisans of the government will be appointed.

A FALLING OFF IN ASSESSMENT

Wisconsin Tax Commission Takes Rap at Personal Property Tax.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—"Personal property is assessed at less than one-half of its true value." Is one of the striking statements in the report of the state tax commission, submitted to the legislature. "The laws relating to assessments have not been changed in any material respect since the act of 1903, resulting in the exemption of mortgages, but assessments of personal property are falling off at the rate of 43.5 per cent of the true value during that period."

"This constantly increasing omission from the assessment rolls of personal property, or the undervaluation of such as find their way into the assessment rolls, seems to have the tacit approval of the local taxpayers; very rarely criticism of the assessors is heard from them. It is quite apparent that we are fast drifting away from the assessment of personal property and toward a tax on land only."

"The report further declares that while the state assessment more than doubles the value of the personal property of the state as assessed locally, the root of the evil is not reached as long as no additional property is placed on the local rolls."

The larger amount of property omitted by the local assessors the heavier is the burden on the property, which he places on the rolls, says the report. "The nearer the corner, placing all taxable property upon the rolls at full value the lower the rate and the greater the relief to those persons who under a careless assessment find their property on the rolls. This is the rule through-out the state. There are, of course, some assessors who diligently perform their duty to the state and to the public."

INSANE MAN NOT AFRAID OF COLD

Escapes From Asylum, Wandering 100 Miles Very Poorly Clad.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claiming to be a disciple of Maj. Ozone, John B. Little of England, an inmate of the state asylum, escaped from that institution and was captured in this, Cass, county near Chaffee.

The unfortunate man had wandered over 100 miles during the four days since his escape. His feet had been encased in a pair of legless boots, and these were worn into mere shreds, his legs protruding into the cold air. He had slept in straw stacks and begged scraps of food from farmers. The chief complaint he had against the asylum was that it did not give the inmates a sufficient amount of fresh air.

IS EXPENSIVE TO MAKE.

Manufacture of Dehydrated Alcohol Not Howling Success.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The possibility of the successful manufacture of dehydrated alcohol in this part of the Northwest is rather remote, judging from the first conclusions reached by Prof. Morton, who is conducting the experimental tests at the Agricultural college under the co-operation of the department of agriculture.

Five conditions of alcohol have been secured. The liquid makes much better material for fuel than the common oil, but the professor thinks its profitable manufacture will be from waste materials as by-products and it will not pay to raise special crops for its manufacture.

These suits are in equity against the Oregon and California road, the Southern Pacific, and the 160 acre defendants. ## CITY OF ST. LOUIS HAS AN ORDINANCE WHICH IS SOLVING SMOKE PROBLEM

How the Missouri City Is Being Kept Clean.

Duluth May Have System Similar to One Used There.

Health Commissioner Patton is beginning an active campaign against the smoke nuisance in Duluth. As a result of this campaign, it is expected that an effective smoke ordinance will be passed, making it an easy matter to bring about the abatement of the nuisance.

Dr. Patton is securing facts and figures from various large cities throughout the country which have smoke ordinances in effect, and if it is decided to adopt a new ordinance along this line in Duluth, the best points of all these measures from outside cities will be embodied in the Duluth ordinance.

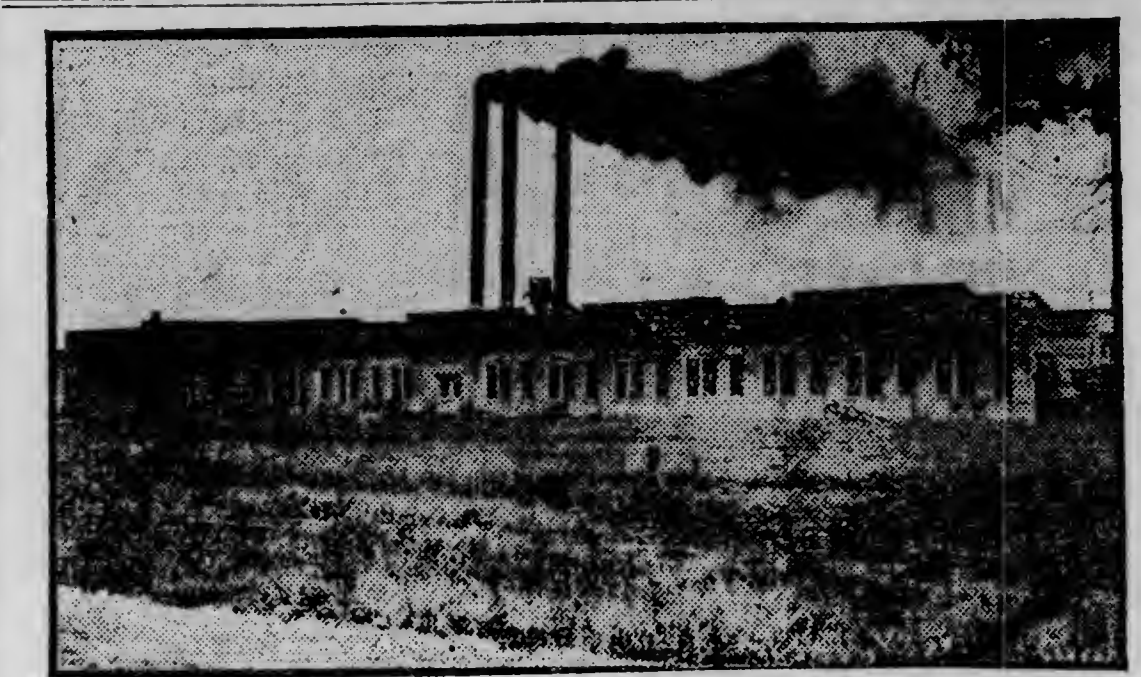

From information already at hand, Commissioner Patton has learned that ordinances of this nature in other cities have brought or are bringing about the results desired. Almost all the cities of importance throughout the country have found it necessary to adopt smoke ordinances.

One of the best examples of methods of fighting the nuisance is shown in the city of St. Louis, Mo. For several years St. Louis has maintained a department whose purpose is smoke abatement, and this department has succeeded to a very large extent, of course, there is still some smoke, particularly in the railroad yards.

Ordinances have been passed enabling the smoke inspector to cause the arrest and bring out the conviction and punishment of violators of the anti-smoke regulations.

Almost every case of smoke nuisance filed against St. Louisans has been made to stick and hundreds have been fined from $25 to $500 every year since the ordinances were passed.

A recent decision handed down by the court of appeals of the St. Louis district, interprets the section of the ordinance making proof of no device for the plant, to mean that the plant cannot be equipped with a device or equipment of any kind to prevent smoke. It had always been construed to mean that there were no stokers, etc., that would fit the particular boiler or furnace used, but Judge Bland ruled that if there was no stoker, or other appliance to fit the furnace, that the owner would have to get a new furnace. This removed the last defense and it is now up to the owners of factories and heating plants in St. Louis to obtain smoke-preventing devices for every plant in the city not already so equipped. For two or three years many persons have been purposely obtaining and installing boilers and furnaces which could not be equipped with the known smoke prevention apparatus, and they have been able to dodge the law, but now they are throwing away their machinery and getting that which can be fitted with smoke consumers.

In St. Louis four inspectors besides the chief are employed to obtain information of violations. These inspectors search for smoking stacks, usually from the tops of large buildings through glasses, which enable them to see considerable distances. If a smokestack topping some factory, or other industry is found to be belching forth rolls of smoke, it is watched for a minute, to time it. If it continues for a longer time than that, the inspector ambles forth and takes a snapshot photograph of the smoke. He turns this over to his chief, with his written report of the time the stack was smoking, and the history of the case. If the chief inspector thinks the company or other owner would be likely to heed a warning, he will notify the manager of the inspector's report. If the manager has been notified once or twice before, and most of them have been, a warrant will be applied for, and the head of the concern dragged into court. Most of them plead guilty on seeing the photographs and pay their fines.

Smoke Inspector Jones says the principal devices for preventing smoke are the downdraft furnaces and the automatic stokers. Various devices in the way of brick, ashes and steam jets are being used, but few of them are very effective and the stokers and downdraft furnaces are rapidly taking the place of other methods for preventing smoke. Ample boiler capacity and careful firing also lend much to the prevention of the nuisance.

Nearly all of the large plants which have installed stokers, including the city's water plant, one of the largest in the city, report that the saving in cost of fuel and labor has meant a great saving. One of the big breweries reported that stokers saved half its fuel bill the first year, and through the influence of these reports, much has been accomplished toward obtaining better smoke-consuming equipment.

Most of the managers protest against the first cost, but thank the department after they have made the investment. About 1,400 plants in the city have been equipped with smoke-consuming devices.

A move is now on to compel the railroads entering the city to use electric engines, so that the principal part of the remaining smoke will be eliminated. There is now practically no smoke in the city, except that from the railroad locomotives. Except when the air is laden with heavy fog, the sky over the city is nearly always clear enough for one to see for miles, but there is a black horizon at the Mississippi river, where St. Louis and East St. Louis, the latter in Illinois, separate. The Illinois city has no smoke abatement laws.

RIIS FOR PUBLICITY.

Roosevelt's Friend Believes in Letting Papers Tell of Crimes.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jacob Riis, President Roosevelt's "most useful citizen," who was also Roosevelt's "ideal newspaper man," is in Minneapolis visiting his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Owens, 1700 Portland avenue, and inspecting for the first time his baby grandson, Jacob Riis Owen.

Quite incidentally, Mr. Riis voiced his pitying disdain for the occasional chief of police, whose policy is to at once conceal news of lawbreaking and mislead the public in regard to it.

He spoke of Inspector Brynes of New York and paid a tribute to him. "Brynes knew the value of the newspapers," he explained. "He knew that it was foolish to try to suppress news. Occasionally there are things which should be kept quiet. But the experienced newspaper reporter understands when that comes. Brynes knew the newspapers were the greatest ally of the intelligent and managed police department, and he used them magnificently."

AIRSHIP MOVES AT WILL OF OPERATOR ON EARTH

Electricity, Conveyed Without Wires, Makes Balloon Answer Every Wish.

New York, Jan. 30.—Demonstration of one of the greatest achievements of the age, the movement of an aerial locomotion was given when Mark O. Anthony, a New York electrical engineer, sent a small dirigible balloon scudding about through the air by means of transmitted power, making it perform all sorts of evolutions and having the air craft at all times under perfect control.

By actual performance he demonstrated for the first time that the long sought for secret of propelling airships by wireless electricity has been discovered. Sitting at a small electrical keyboard, such as is used in sending wireless messages, the inventor ticked off various combinations of dots and dashes, each combination causing the balloon to perform some particular movement.

Responds to Every Order. Sometimes the operator placed his instrument directly under the balloon and again would remove it 200 feet away. Distance had no effect on the control, and the response of the mechanism which was operated by propellers, was prompt and effective. With this small apparatus, he said, "I could control the balloon at a distance of twelve or fifteen miles, and with a more powerful apparatus the control could be extended to almost any distance."

The exhibition was given in Leo Stevens' balloon house in Hoboken, a structure 600 or 700 feet in length, and with sufficient head room to allow a satisfactory test of the "wireless dirigible."

The model consists of an ordinary cigar-shaped gas bag twenty-two feet in length and inflated with hydrogen gas. Beneath that is suspended the common type of framework used in all dirigibles except that all of the mechanism is operated by wireless electricity instead of by a gasoline motor controlled by an operator sitting beside it.

Up or Down at Will. In the ordinary dirigible balloon the two mechanical devices which control it are a propeller which sends it forward and a rudder which governs its course. In Mr. Anthony's invention other devices are added. Besides the propeller and the rudder he has a second propeller directly beneath the center of the frame, which operates vertically and lifts or lowers the airship at the will of the operator. He also has added a mechanical device, which at the call of a few dots and dashes, releases a clutch which drops a small weight, representing a charge of dynamite to be used in warfare.

During a two hours' trial, the inventor sat at his keyboard in one end of the building and caused the balloon to move higher and thither and up and down as the spectators dictated. Mr. Anthony, in explaining his invention, said: "The dots and dashes have an effect on the mechanism of the propeller and the rudder, and the selector controls the movement of the mechanism at the will of the operator."

Compressed Air as Power. "This selector operates the electrically controlled valves of the compressed air engines, which give the desired motion forward or backward, or cutting off the supply of energy, as the operator desires. The engine is so constructed that the amount of air consumed after passing through the reducing valve is small compared with any motor now on the market. By using compressed

Mr. Tholens, like thousands of others who have received marked benefits from this great medicine, says he is anxious to have every one know what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for him.

In a recent interview Mr. Tholens said: "I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and am still using it as a tonic stimulant. I have received very marked benefit from same. I follow your directions and take the medicine in small doses. It strengthens my nerves, aids digestion and brings me restful sleep."

"A few weeks ago I met a friend who had been ailing all winter and I advised him to get a bottle of Duffy's Malt Whiskey. I met him again a few days ago and he told me he was taking it and was receiving great benefit from its use. Send him a Medical Booklet."

AFRAID TO EAT MEAT?

Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear of Misery.
Let Diapiesin Digest Your
Meals Until Stomach
Gets Strong.

As there is often some in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapiesin in the house handy? This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour stomach five minutes after. Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Diapiesin. Then you will really see why Diapiesin cures indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn and prevents at once such miseries as belching of gas, eructations of sour undigested food, nausea, headaches, dizziness, constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion with the common every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that there is something else wrong, or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This is a common mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest. Instead, it ferments and sours turns to acid, which will putrefy in the entire digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Diapiesin.

Read carefully the Triangle, taken after eating, will promptly digest all your food, the same as a strong, healthy stomach should do.

COLD SNAP WILL BE OVER SOON

Weather Man Promises
Warmer Weather by Sunday Evening.

This morning at 7 a. m. the thermometer at the weather bureau registered 17 degrees below zero. At 9 a. m. it was 15 below, and at 10 it had gone back to 12.

The mercury will be anywhere from 15 to 25 degrees below zero tonight, but it is expected that by tomorrow afternoon the weather will moderate. By Sunday evening, according to H. W. Richardson of the local weather bureau, the cold snap will be over.

Down in St. Paul the mercury got down to 15 degrees below zero for the coldest of the present snap. The coldest spot was at Minneapolis, where it was 20 below. At Duluth, the mercury was 18 below. In the extreme Northwest the temperatures are moderating. Duluth zero, Duluth, Minn., 10 below at Williston, N. D., and 4 above at Calgary and Edmonton, Alberta.

ST. PAUL SCHOOLS HIT.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fully three-fourths of the pupils of the public schools of the city failed to attend classes yesterday on account of the storm, and Supt. Foster ordered all the schools dismissed for the day at the close of the morning session.

At some of the schools teachers failed to appear and many of the children were ill, for the greater part of the morning.

Charcoal Purifies Any Breath

And In Its Purest Form Has Long
Been Known As The Greatest Gas Absorber.

Pure willow charcoal will oxidize any noxious odor, remove all impurities, and purify a foul cellar. It will absorb deadly fumes, for charcoal absorbs one hundred times its volume in gas.

The ancients knew the value of charcoal and administered it in cases of indigestion, especially pertaining to the stomach. In England today charcoal is used for the treatment of cholera, and while some physicians in Europe claim to cure many skin diseases by covering the affected skin with charcoal powder.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges go into the mouth and transfer foul odors at once into oxygen, absorb noxious gases and acids and when swallowed mix with the digestive juices and stop gas making, fermentation and decay.

By their gentle qualities they cure constipation, biliousness and stop diarrhea and constipation. Bad breath simply cannot exist when charcoal is used. There are no fumes or acids about this statement. Don't take our word for it, but look into the matter yourself. Ask your druggist or physician, or better still, look up charcoal in your encyclopedia.

The beauty of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges is that the highest pharmaceutical expert knowledge obtainable has been put into preparing them, and they will give to man the best form of charcoal for use.

Pure willow and honey is the result. Two or three after meals and at bedtime sweeten the breath, stop decay of teeth, aid the digestive organs, and promote perfect bowel action. They enrich the supply of oxygen to the system and thereby revitalize the blood and nerves.

ON THE IRON RANGES

EXTENSION IS BEING PUSHED

Small Army Working on Great Northern in Western Mesaba.

Culmnet, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despite the unpleasant weather conditions the Great Northern railroad is proceeding rapidly with the construction of its extension from Nashwan to Grand Rapids. The speed with which the work is progressing under adverse conditions is an eye opener to those not familiar with the way James J. Hill does things.

Within a radius of one mile of this young and growing Western Mesaba town there are several camps, and 300 or 400 men employed.

Steam shovels with accompanying dump car trains are employed day and night, and great amounts of dirt are being moved. New steam shovels and other equipment are being ordered right along, and new crews are being put to work. In many places the grade is being cut through the forest.

An indication that great progress has been made is the fact that the contractors are moving their headquarters camp to Bovey. The erection of the new quarters at Bovey was commenced Thursday.

Culmnet is enjoying considerable prosperity as a result of the railroad extension, and the natural resources of the place.

PARIS ANGRY AT MAY GARDEN

Prima Donna is Accused of Profaning Massenet's Opera by Assuming a Role Which Was Meant for Men.

When Miss Mary Garden, the American prima donna, recently essayed the role of Jean, the Juggler, in Massenet's opera of "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," she put herself under serious criticism in Paris. Massenet is the favorite composer of the French capital. They used to have fun with him because most of his operas were written for some noted prima donna—"Manon Lescaut" for Sylvi Sanderson and "La Navarraise" for Calve. To defame his critics, he determined to compose an opera in which there should be no woman role at all and where the work should be as sacred in and where as the "Parisian" of Richard Wagner. He did so, and the work succeeded, but now Miss Garden under his plan by taking the leading part of Jean, a role intended for a tenor and sung by one in Europe. Parisians resent this defiance of the composer's wishes, and are saying harsh things about it. They say that she is a woman over whom only a few months ago they raved.

Subsequently the American prima donna may not find the latest string of Paris out for her when she returns there. The artistic population of the great French city is outraged because of the fact that she is appearing in the role of Jean the Juggler in Massenet's opera, "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame."

"Sacrilège," the term by which they may describe her action in assuming the role written for a tenor. They say the injection of a woman into a work written with as reverent a spirit as this latest production of the noted French composer defiles the whole purpose that inspired Massenet to write it.

Meanwhile, Miss Garden has been singing the role in New York and Philadelphia with most distinguished success, and she is not permitting any traces of worry to show in her delightful performance.

"This tramp, ragged and forlorn, stood up on the scaffolding in the police court dock, and the magistrate, frowning at him, said:

"Inventor," was the reply, in a hoarse voice.

"What have you invented?" asked the magistrate.

"Nothing," said the prisoner, still more hoarsely, "but I'm trying to."

This time it was Emma Calve he favored.

Taking a short story on the Franco-Prussian war, one of the kind of tales that the French writers know so well how to make real, and produced a thrilling one-act music drama, "La Navarraise."

It secured a splendid success, but instead of greeting the composer with the acclaim due him, he was adrift and unhelped. Paris had a quiet little laugh to itself.

The jealous in the gay French capital began to intimate that Massenet was not as much of a musician as he had been credited with being. He could only write for a woman, they said.

He would fit an opera to Sanderson or to Calve, just as their costumes were made to fit, and the abstract, regardless of who would sing the parts; it was relying on the fame of some noted prima donna to carry his productions to success.

When finally the stories reached Massenet he became furious. The artist of intensest feeling was injured by the insinuations.

Then he determined to write an opera which would be absolutely unique in the history of music, in that it should not contain one role for a woman. He composed absolutely and produced a work that should depend alone on musical merit.

He looked around him for a subject, and then he chanced upon a little story by Anatole France, one of the foremost of French prose masters.

This told the pitiful little tale of how a wandering troubadour, weary of the hardships of his strolling life and entered into a life of domesticity, and was here he would have been happy but for the fact that he felt that his life of domesticity was a compromise with his own nature. He could not write or sculpture, while he could do nothing but juggle.

When it was his own simple life, he was finally decided that juggling was his true life, and he decided to play the juggler.

Heroes of the American Navy

DECATUR, CUSHING AND HOBSON, WHOSE NAMES ARE WRITTEN HIGH UPON THE SCROLL OF FAME—STORY OF THREE EXPLOITS DURING THREE EPOCHS OF AMERICAN HISTORY.

BY JOHN H. NORTON.

THE principal business of the nation in the past has been the building of the navy. To be a great war-time nation, it is necessary to have a navy. To be a great war-time nation, it is necessary to have a navy. To be a great war-time nation, it is necessary to have a navy.

There may be those who will take umbrage at this statement, but if such there are, I ask them to turn to the pages of history and there read the record of the human race. It matters little whether a generation of improvement or a generation of decline is the result. The story is the same.

Who was the foremost character among the Greeks? Achilles and Agamemnon. Who was the foremost among the Romans? Charlemagne among the Gauls; William the Conqueror and Napoleon Bonaparte; Cromwell and Wellington; Washington and Grant. These and others like them were the foremost figures of the age in which they lived.

Letters and literature, science and art, industry and agriculture, all have been pushed aside by the rude gauntlet of war when the nation is in peril.

It is in their conquest for glory or for fame.

high levitations of the deep, we can hardly realize that these are the outgrowth of a generation of improvement or a generation of decline.

The Albatross was built on the lower waters of the Roanoke river and was towed out of the river by a tug.

Her armor and armament were new. Her armor was of thick iron plates, and her armament consisted of two 12-inch guns.

The casemate was projected with a roof-like covering over which were two rows of iron, and two rifled cannons mounted amidships so as to be worked through the portholes.

She was also provided with an iron ram, and a young lieutenant, William B. Cushing, volunteered to destroy her.

For that purpose, he was sent to New York and procured two teams of mules and a launch. One of the teams was sent to the launch, and the other to the launch.

On the evening of Nov. 26, 1864, Cushing decided to attempt the Albatross. He selected a crew of men, thirteen in number, as brave as him.

With a picket boat, they were delayed some little time, and on getting off they returned without making any further attempt that night. The following morning, however, they started up the river again.

After her engagement with the Federal fleet at Plymouth, the government destroyed her.

THE MERRIMAC.

During the Spanish-American war the Spanish fleet was divided into two squadrons, the Atlantic squadron in the command of Admiral Montojo, stationed at Manila, and the Atlantic squadron in command of Admiral Cervera, being at home. Some time during March Admiral Cervera, with his fleet, consisting of six armored cruisers and two torpedo destroyers, sailed from Cadiz, Spain, and so careful had been the Spanish to keep the destination of the fleet a secret, that much anxiety as to the intentions of the Spaniards was manifested, especially along the Atlantic coast of the United States, and our Atlantic squadron, under Admiral Sampson, was kept busy scouring the coast for the enemy.

The Spanish fleet, in the meantime, had been in the harbor of Santiago, and later at Martinique, where it put into the harbor for coal. Owing to the neutrality laws in force at the time, the French port, Cervera was unable to secure the coal he needed, and was not located until some time during the latter part of May, when he was found to be in the landlocked harbor of Santiago de Cuba, where his fleet was safe from the American navy.

The harbor of Santiago was a narrow one, and the water, navigable for boats of large size. Here fortifications consisted of a large Spanish fort or castle, called the Moro, on one hand, and two sea batteries, one on each side of the entrance to the harbor, called the San Juan and the Estrella. The latter was a gunboat to enter the harbor and escape destruction.

Admiral Sampson, after finding that the Spanish fleet was in the harbor, was anxious to keep it there, and fearing that it might escape, he decided to blockade the harbor.

He sent the Merrimac, a large armored cruiser, to the entrance of the harbor, and the other vessels of the squadron to the entrance of the harbor.

The Merrimac was a large armored cruiser, and was the only one of its kind in the navy. It was built in 1860, and was the first of its kind in the navy.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Buffalo & Susquehanna Preparing to Increase Mining Operations on Menominee, Marquette and Mesaba Ranges---Zimmerman Mine to Ship This Year.

St. Louis River, Mich., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace interests are preparing to materially increase their mining operations in the Lake Superior region. They have secured the rights in the Marquette and Mesabie ranges, in the first named district a large tract of land, including the Dunn property in the Crystal Falls field, and vigorous preparations are being made to develop the property in the Hiattsville and the Hiattsville mine at Stambaugh. The Munro mine, an important property, is being developed at the opening navigation. On the Marquette range property of the Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace interests in the vicinity of Michiganville, will be developed. The property is situated on the shore of Lake Superior. Portions of ore will be taken from the deposit. A contract for this work has been made with the Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace interests. It is proposed to transform the Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace into an open-pit producer.

This task at Hibbing will be an important one. The Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace interests are chiefly interested in the development of the Hibbing iron ore field. The Hibbing iron ore field is situated in the Hibbing range, in the Lake Superior region. The Hibbing iron ore field is situated in the Hibbing range, in the Lake Superior region. ## COPPER OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Recovery Slow, But Improvement is Certain—History of Copper Booms and Breaks, Justifies the Prediction That the Industry Will Continue to Have Prosperous Periods.

The metal industries generally suffered severely in 1908 from the effects of the financial collapse of 1907. There was a marked improvement in the last half of the year. The metals showed a large accumulation of unsold stocks and a very feeble demand.

Copper started the year around 13 1/2 cents, reached the low point in May, in which month the average was a low of 12 1/2 cents, and then gradually recovered, the last month of the year, which was the highest, averaged 14 1/2 cents. Silver went from bad to worse as the year progressed and the average for the year for the first month was $5.678 and for the last month $5.762. During the year, but ended the period with a record low of 54 cents. The lowest had made in the earlier months. August's average price was the highest of the year, and the lowest was in January average price 4.213.

The year 1909 looks for a

posol in this market and the markets of the world.

The year opened with the metal on a low of 12 1/2 cents a pound for lake and 13 1/2 cents for electrolytic. A low of 12 1/2 cents was reached in March until March, when it fell to 12 1/2 cents for lake and 13 1/2 cents for electrolytic. From this the market held steady in a small range of prices until August, when it rose to 14 1/2 cents as high as 14 1/2 cents and electrolytic to 15 1/2 cents. From that time showed a gradual advance in the price and during November lake rose to 15 1/2 cents and electrolytic to 16 1/2 cents. The end of the year finds lake at 14 1/2 cents and electrolytic at 14 1/2 cents to 14 1/2 cents, and it is apparent that the year has been a gradual business improvement and an increasing demand for the metal is the result.

The demand by our consumers was not so great as in the previous year, conditions, while the demand from Europe exceeded that of previous years.

United States, including Canada and Mexico, were about 94,400 tons, being 10,000 tons more than in the corresponding month of 1907. The following table shows the import tonnage from the United States, compared with those of 1907:

	1908.	1907.
January .....	7,399	10,707
February .....	6,100	10,707
March .....	6,100	10,707
April .....	7,000	10,707
May .....	7,000	10,707
June .....	6,100	10,707
July .....	6,100	10,707
August .....	8,900	10,707
September .....	12,700	10,707
October .....	12,700	10,707
November (estimated) .....	10,000	6,500
December (estimated) .....	10,000	6,500
Totals .....	84,400	121,900

It is the opinion of the writer that the imports of copper into the United States are practically the same as the stocks on hand reported by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. This would indicate a home consumption during the year of about 84,400 tons.

The large metal dealers took advantage of the prevailing low price during the first part of the year for European manufacturers and the low price for American stock. The exports from this country during the year 1907 are, in tons

The third period was called the 1907 boom, with £112 as the highest price. At the present time the market is again collapsed for different reasons. The large unused stocks were left over from the previous producers or speculators. Although the figures actually available are merely for the steel industry, the situation at the time of the collapse of the Secretan boom at about 1900 was the beginning of the present boom with 15,510 tons, and at the beginning of 1908 with 21,000 tons, it is generally

CALUMET & ARIZONA IS BUSY

Sinking of the Oliver Shatt Has Almost Reached 1400-Foot Level---Annual Meetings of Shattuck-Arizona and Denn Companies.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 30.—The leading features of the Calumet & Arizona's work during the past two months are the sinking of the Oliver shaft and the progress of the work on the new No. 10 shaft. Work is claimed. During the past sixty days (approximately) the Oliver shaft has been sunk from the 1,200-foot level until now it has almost reached the 1,400-foot level. The new No. 10 shaft, 1,400-foot drifts will be driven to cut the great sulphide bodies revealed by the 1,200-foot drifts. The Shattuck is yet unnamed. It is now being driven on the same strike as the No. 10. Work has been done during the past week; the work in the bottom was discontinued. The drifts are being driven on the same level. The new No. 10 shaft has been erected, and a blacksmith shop fitted out. Before next week the work will be well advanced. The Shattuck is yet unnamed.

MINES IN GLOBE DISTRICT

Strike at Gray Mine of United Globe, Which is Encouraging to Globe Consolidated and Others--- Old Dominion's Rich Strike.

Gray, Ariz., Jan. 30.—Among recent strikes of ore made in the mines of the Globe district none is more important than that reported to have been discovered by the Arizona United Globe, or Phelps-Dodge Properties, which are a part of the Arizona Copper Company of Maine. The latest strike was made in a winze between the 600- and 700-foot levels, about 100 feet north of the Gray shaft, where twenty-nine feet of good commercial sulphide was exposed. In fact the ore is a very desirable grade of sulphide, the whole twenty-nine feet averaging 45 per cent copper, 27 per cent iron and 40 per cent sulphur. The same ore at the 700-foot level and on the 800-foot level and to a less extent on the 700-foot level.

It was not known at the time of the discovery on the point of closing down the Gray mine indefinitely, but subsequent developments have shown that the latest recent strike of sulphide has caused the management to reconsider the future of the Gray mine at the Gray are being gradually increased. The Gray mine is now looked upon as a property of great promise to become a large shipper within the next few months.

This strike of sulphides in the Gray mine is also very important in that it is the first strike of sulphide properties to the northeast of the Gray, and especially to the Arizona Copper Company, which is one of the National Mining Exploration companies, actively developing the copper resources of the Southwest.

It is the development of perhaps greater importance to the Old Dominion is the strike of very rich ore on the fourth level of the Old Dominion mine. An influx of water caused the mine to be closed down in the drift, but we understand the flow has diminished perceptibly. It is expected that the water will come from western workings in the region of Pinal Creek. A smaller ever increasing flow has caused the smaller ever increasing accidents, the production of copper for the month should exceed that of the previous month.

The Superior & Boston development work is progressing and the shipments of ore to El Paso continue at the rate of forty tons per day. The ore is being delivered from a car of ore from the winze below the

NEW SMELTER MAY BE BUILT

Construction of Entirely New Plant by the Calumet & Arizona at Douglas is Rumored—Second Furnace Has Been Enlarged.

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 30.—The work of extending a second of the seven furnaces at the Calumet & Arizona is practically complete and it is probable that the entire work will be completed within the next few days, giving an added 200-ton capacity to the present plant.

At the completion of the furnace came the laying off of about a dozen of the men who have been working in the room and machine shops and gave rise to the rumor that further enlargements would not be made, but that was to be abandoned in contemplation of the starting of the building of a new plant.

What has been the idea, heretofore, of the officials of the company?

When the Times of the 22nd inst. Woods was asked if the laying off of these men was to be taken as an indication that the company had decided to start the Calumet & Arizona company to at once embark on the construction of a new plant.

It was replied that the company had replied that the laying off of these men was not to be taken as any such indication, but that the company had decided on the extension of furnace No. 6 and that as this work was finished, no longer required.

With the laying off of the extended furnace the present plant will have a limit capacity of handling 2,700 tons of ore per day, but, as the company has decided to build one of the seven furnaces down except in cases of rush and necessity, it will be able to handle at least 2,400 tons of ore as a day's feeding. The plans along which the company has been working will include the extending of each of the remaining four furnaces ten feet and giving each a capacity of 300 tons, which will give a total limit capacity of 3,500 tons of ore per day.

Notwithstanding the statement made by the company, it is a very strong rumor that the company will build a new smelter, that it will be necessary to build a new plant, and that it will receive receipts with the completion of the railroad and receipts from the railroad will be paid, undoubtedly in great amounts, in support of these rumors.

It is held that the space between the present plant and the new plant is inadequate for even its present capacity.

It is also held that the company will be able to contain only a supply for eighteen hours consumption at the capacity of the present plant, and that there will be a shortage of fuel and still fewer hours of operation when the extended furnace is blown in.

It is also held that the present handling flag are insufficient for the increased output of the plant, and that the company will have to make the necessary enlargements and extensions in these respects.

Other rumors are that the company will build the Calumet & Arizona will build a entirely new plant are also advanced.

As the company has been so silent on the subject, the rumors emanating from other sources of no real value.

The capacity of the smelter at present will permit of an output of copper and silver of about 200 tons per year, heretofore in any given year.

BIG OUTPUT IN THE SPRING

Utah-Bingham Getting Into Shape for Large Production---Receiver Asked for Gem Consolidated Company, Fraud Being Alleged.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 30.—Utah-Bingham at Bingham is getting into shape for production on a large scale in the spring. Ore has been blocked out in six parts of the mine. Since last fall the mine has been equipped with modern drills and electric lights. By the tunnel and winze system, the main ledge of the property has been developed and a connection has been made along its strike through three tunnels at different elevations; these have all been connected up to the main shaft. The main shaft has delayed work, but the face is now within 100 feet of the ledge. No tunnel workings have been started with ore shaft work has been suspended until spring.

Dividends have been declared by the Sioux Consolidated for the last six months at the rate of 15 cents a share, or $59,531, and Colorado Mining, Tintic, 8 cents a share, or $80,000. Sioux Consolidated paid its first dividend in October last. It paid also

In November and December, the dividends to date aggregating 17 cents a share in ninety days, or $26,716. The shareholders of the Tintic mine held at Provo last week. Manager E. Loose reported that there is enough ore in sight to continue shipments at the rate of 100 tons a day.

Uncle Sam, a Tintic mine, passed its dividend owing to having struck a lean streak.

At the meeting to the report made at the annual meeting of the Lower Main body company at Tintic, it will be recalled that the year's financial assessment period will be passed, that date, it is expected, the management shaft will be down to the 2,000 level and the year's operations at that level. Officers have been elected as follows: President, John Decker, 2,000 level; vice president, J. W. C. McCormick, the other directors are D. L. Wertheimer, E.

the roll of the states was called. On the third ballot, Lincoln commanded the votes of the Ohio and New Jersey voters. The Ohioans forsook the Republican candidate, and went over to Lincoln, who, at the close of the call, stood within a vote and half of victory. A delegate from Ohio leaped up and announced the change of four votes in that delegation to Lincoln. This was more than enough.

Not waiting for the official announcement of the result, waved a tall stick in the air and shouted most loudly to a man on the roof who was anxiously peering through the skylight, and who carried the news to the crowd in the street. The mad cheering which followed caught up without, while the echoes of a booming cannon rolled over the water of Lake Michigan.

A huge and horrible picture of the strange-looking men of Jewry, who were clustered in the hall, where delegations, in an eagerness to change their vote, were hanging about the hustings, on the one side, were frantically striving to make themselves heard above the shouting of New York and Massachusetts doubtfully bowed to the will of the majority.

It was a scene of exciting scenes, as if drunk, the victors overcame by the numbers of the vanquished, and the burden of their disappointment.

that unerring instinct. That teacher goes into command and the boy is getting an education. The Gauld says that Mark Hopkins on one end of it and himself on the other was university enough to get a Ph.D. in education. He was when he was a boy, but forgot it for a while, and afterwards learned it again. He is sure to like them, if he can put them in the form of a definition, or acquire it by means of action, or if it can be visualized, so that he can use it in the form of a definition, or in the form of travel; his mechanics in the form of balls and courts, his mathematics in the form of a ball school is out and other happy events, his grammar, in watching for the right word, and his history, in watching against the reign of grammar in the realm of speech; his history in developing the story of the great warriors and pioneers. He likes his studies all the better wherever they are, and he is not content with the activities that belong in the calling to which he aspires. In fact, it is the boy's nature to be interested in every attractive that comes. Figures are used in engineering; chemicals in chemistry; photography, physics in the drama; and they become fascinating. Inevitably is the thing that secures education, the thing that makes it reliable, stimulates imagination, and binds the school course to the coming of the boy.

The boy often finds greatness in the obscure and modest teacher and loves to lift him into fame. In fact, the boy is the one who lifts the boy in the president's chair at Washington, one of the greatest pleasures is to say, "You are the president of the school." Not every pedagogue knows what distinctions may be coming his way.

The boy is drawn as a "hookey" seeks inherent in most lads, and works in inverse ratio to the conventional. He is drawn to the things of his home and the attractions of the school. But, after one experience like that, the boy is drawn to the powers at home, the very word "hookey" falls into a state of "innocence" and the boy is drawn to the things which it stands become most obnoxious to him.

The thing the boy comes to like the school best for, is the authority there, the authority of truth and of the things that are true. The boy knows that is the exercise of "the Kingship of self-control" on his part, and that is the thing that makes it a thing that is hard and distasteful from the mere love of hard work.

The boy is drawn to the things that there were three marks of a good student. He can make himself begin to keep on, when he would rather stop, when he would rather go on. This is the boy, master of himself and all his enlarging powers.

democrats who repudiated Greeley he quoted with magical effect:

Ingrate, when contemplating the ingratitude of the Chinese, who are an ungrateful, covetous, god apothecary, to sweeten my imagination," said McKenzie, "I will drink to the free list. Still ministering to the spiritual wants of the Chinese, you are willing that they should have the right to burn incense to this unknown god free from taxation, while the humble American, upon the Bible that points his way to heaven—

S. S. McKenzie, who broke the duty of the Chinese to the Republican house sustained the motion by a vote of 108 yeas to 57 nays. And so, thanks to McKenzie of Kentucky.

The following year Governor J. P. Crocker Knott appointed McKenzie secretary of the state of Kentucky. It was his duty to be faithful to Frankfort, where there resided Knott, McKenzie, McCarty, Ross and McKenzie, the McKenzies. Every night was a symposium, and when the legislature was in session a fortnight at a time.

When McKenzie was in congress he was considered the most enterprising man in the state, a man of letters, a corps, the army and navy, cultured visitors from Boston, Garyfield, Haines, Lamm, Bob Ingersoll, John McCullough, Lawrence Barrett, Joe Jefferson, and the great Congressman, Senator Vest, "Old Roman" Thurman, and scores of others loved to hang on his words. He was the first man of his world to be the first man of any company here in that particular.

He was minister of Peru undered in Cleveland, and there his eyesight was nearly destroyed. He returned to Kentucky and lived some years in retirement, until the inexorable summons came and he was gathered to his fathers.

James A. McKenzie was not a great man, but for brilliancy of intellect and for the foresight American of his day.

Late Winter Fashions in ELABORATE WRAPS

From Paris comes the fancy for Diaphanous Coats

The Evening Wrap Will Not Do for Day Wear - A Sombre Outside but the Lining As Gay As You Please - The Fascinating Lace Coat.

With each recurring season greater magnificence of refinement is called for. Once the useful "winter coat," with its accompanying furs, served all through a season as a sufficient covering for any occasion, except when full evening dress was called for.

Now we have changed all that—or at least Paris, our arbiter, has. The handy "winter coat" is no more. There must be, beside the essential tailored suit and rough topcoat for stormy weather, a sumptuous evening wrap and as many dressy affairs for calling wear and various afternoon functions as one's purse may provide. The modest black kersey or melton tailored coat of a decade ago would be as much out of place over one of the dainty satin restaurant frocks of today as would be a country mouse in town.

The Double Duty Wrap.

The woman who cannot afford both an evening wrap and one in darker hue for pre-gaslight occasions compromises with a smart wrap that will answer for either service. The fur for black satin evening wraps makes this idea easy to carry out, and the new satins come in double width, especially for cutting the big circular capes. While black happens to be particularly smart at the present moment, this color, of course, is the economical woman's standby; for not only is the black wrap above the reproach of constant soil traces, but it is also agreeably inconspicuous when a trip must be made in train or trolley car.

A stunning wrap of this character was seen at a recent wedding. The cape—for that was the shape of the wrap—was of black satin, and was lined with the rose lobster pink, a vivid shade richer than coral, yet deeper than rose. Over this pink lining a nine-inch facing or "hem" of the black satin was turned up all around the edge of the cape, the top of the facing being finished with a very narrow pleating of black satin ribbon. The neck of the cape was richly embroidered with faceted jet beads and rose pink coral, and at one side of the front, near the top, was attached a long tab showing the same embroidery. This tab, when the cape was adjusted on the figure, was tossed over the shoulder to hang down the back of the cape as far as the waist-line in a gorgeous panel.

A Stage Wrap That Will Be Copied Ad Libitum.

The woman who is the happy possessor of a comfortable limousine which is always in waiting at the other end of her telephone wire adheres to the loose, cape-like wrap for afternoon wear, for she seldom travels afoot in the street, and, with the luxurious dressing-rooms always provided at fashionable function and the convenient checking arrangements at theaters and restaurants, she may always throw her wrap aside indoors to reveal a charming frock.

A very smart wrap for wear over an afternoon toilette is worn by Miss "Annie Russell" in "The Stronger Sex," and the model is already being copied by the modistes for fashionable women who have fallen in love with the unique garment. The coat is a very loose, baggy affair of green-gold cloth, draped upon a second coat of mole color satin, the upper coat being cut away in wondrous slashes to reveal stretches of the satin beneath.

Hands of dark fur flash the sleeves and collar. The success of such a wrap depends, of course, upon the artistic blending of colors used for the upper and under coats. One striking model is being built of canary yellow cloth, draped over purple satin, with gold embroideries taking the place of the fur trimming.

Almost Like Dolmans Are New Paris Wraps.

Some of the smart little mantles just arriving from Paris are amusingly like the old-fashioned dolmans long accorded to the humble and respectable English housekeeper. The Paris mantle, however, is a very gay little affair, caught in here, looped back there, and trimmed with any amount of buttons, tassels and lively bits of embroidery.

A black satin mantle designed for wear with a cloth frock has crossed surplice fringes and an ornament of silver embroidery very high in the back, from which pass two ends of silver banding which form a circle belt. The loose shoulders lengthen into wide sleeves and the little mantle, when on, looks something like a Gela-girl's kimono caught in by an encircling obi sash.

A One-Sided Coat.

From Paris also comes the one-sleeve wrap. This is, in fact, a long cape, which hangs at one side in the ordinary way from shoulder to hem. At the other side the cape is slashed away at the bottom, the material over the shoulder being caught together with a bit of gold embroidery to form a loose sleeve. The straight side is furnished with a panel, which when the coat is worn is thrown over the shoulder in stote effect.

The Long Capes Are Most Convenient.

Though a few sleeved wraps are seen in the evening, the long, circular cape is by far the favorite model this winter. With the narrow, clinging skirts these loose capes are much more comfortable than sleeved wraps, for under their enveloping length both hands are free to lift the trailing draperies as high from the pavement as one pleases. All the smart capes fall quite to the ankles, and, likewise, they button securely across the front in double-breasted fashion, long tassels at either side of the neck being added for a loose fastening when the cape is only donned for a moment or one travels in a carriage and the close fastening is not required.

The Lace Coat Grows More and More Popular.

Every woman now is searching the attic trunks in the ardent hope of finding one of those exquisite old thread lace sacques which the gentle ladies of a generation ago wore over their hoop skirts. Dress-makers are doing wonders with these old lace coats, transforming them with chiffon linings, passementerie trimmings and the like into marvels of up-to-the-Paris-minute chic.

Lacking a bona-fide heirloom sacque, a very creditable coat may be devised with silver lace or with wide lace insertion alternating with cluny entre-deux. Black lace insertions, however, when of presentable quality, are so high priced that it is much wiser to have the coat built of one of the heavy allover laces or of net, adding the extra expense in embroidered handings, fringes, fancy buttons and the like; for the lace coat can hardly be too gay and frivolous in conception to suit the mode.

The Lace Coat Illustrated is of Black Net, Embroidered lavishly with dots, arabesques and conventional flower motifs.

This coat is an imported affair, as every inch of it testifies; but the style might be copied in any heavy net, the embroidery being done on silk and applied to the net, or put in with the coarse darned stitches which are considered especially smart this year.

Pride Keeps One Warm in a Lace Coat.

A coat of such sheer character would, of course, be mounted over this silk or chiffon. Such a coat makes no pretense at being a protection against the cold. Consciousness of being expressive of the very latest thought in smartness should warm the cockles of the heart that beats under a lace coat, no matter if the arms do creep into goose-flesh. In fact, nobody seems to care now whether one is warm or not.

When Mist Is Embroidered By Fairies.

As though fairy needleworkers had been at work tracing patterns on evening mist—that is what one exquisite lace wrap from Paris looks like. Examining more closely, one finds an outer fall of pearl-tinted chiffon, heavily embroidered in soft-tone, and lining over an undercoat of white Valenciennes lace. The two fabrics are caught together around the edges of the wrap with a wide hem of pearl gray satin. Down the back of the coat goes a panel of very open silver embroidery on gray net. The effect of the embroidered chiffon, over the figured lace, cannot be described; but when one learns that this lovely wrap comes from Paris, the fairy embroidery and misty combination of materials are explained.

Fur Coats For Fortunate Folk.

The woman who owns a handsome fur wrap is, of course, adequately coated for any occasion; for fine fur is sufficient elegance in itself, and is the one material which may not be duplicated in appearance at less cost.

Sealskin this winter has been one of the most favored furs for dressy wear, and such coats are always finished in a luxurious manner, with various dainty trimmings of buttons, passementerie and the like, and, of course, a sumptuous lining of satin brocade. A coat of broadtail, very simply cut, is styled at the sides and back, to make deep tails, which fall back at the least provocation, to reveal the handsome lining of pale rose brocade. The pointed shape of these tails at the bottom gives a dressy lift to the coat also, and the garment has a rich collar of gray chinchilla, matched by a muff of the same fur.

The Parisian Police of Velvet.

Velvet wraps are much in evidence now at Paris afternoon functions, and these luxurious wraps are usually trimmed with sable or dark marten fur. A cape of deep wine-colored pattern velvet, falling to the hem of the gown beneath, has a superb collar of sable and a narrow edge of sable caught to this panel about a foot from the bottom of the cape, giving an odd yet very smart effect.

Velvet wraps are, of course, only for those who ride in carriages or motor cars. Their effect is one of extreme luxury and elegance, not in keeping with a journey in a public conveyance; and, of course, a spot of rain or even a flurry of snow will easily spoil the beauty of a velvet wrap.

fashion, over a small cushion about the size of an elbow, and this twist makes the center foundation of the Psyche knot. At either side of the coil little puffs exactly matching the hair may be placed, or if the hair is thick enough to allow of it the ends may be rolled into small puffs and pinned in place.

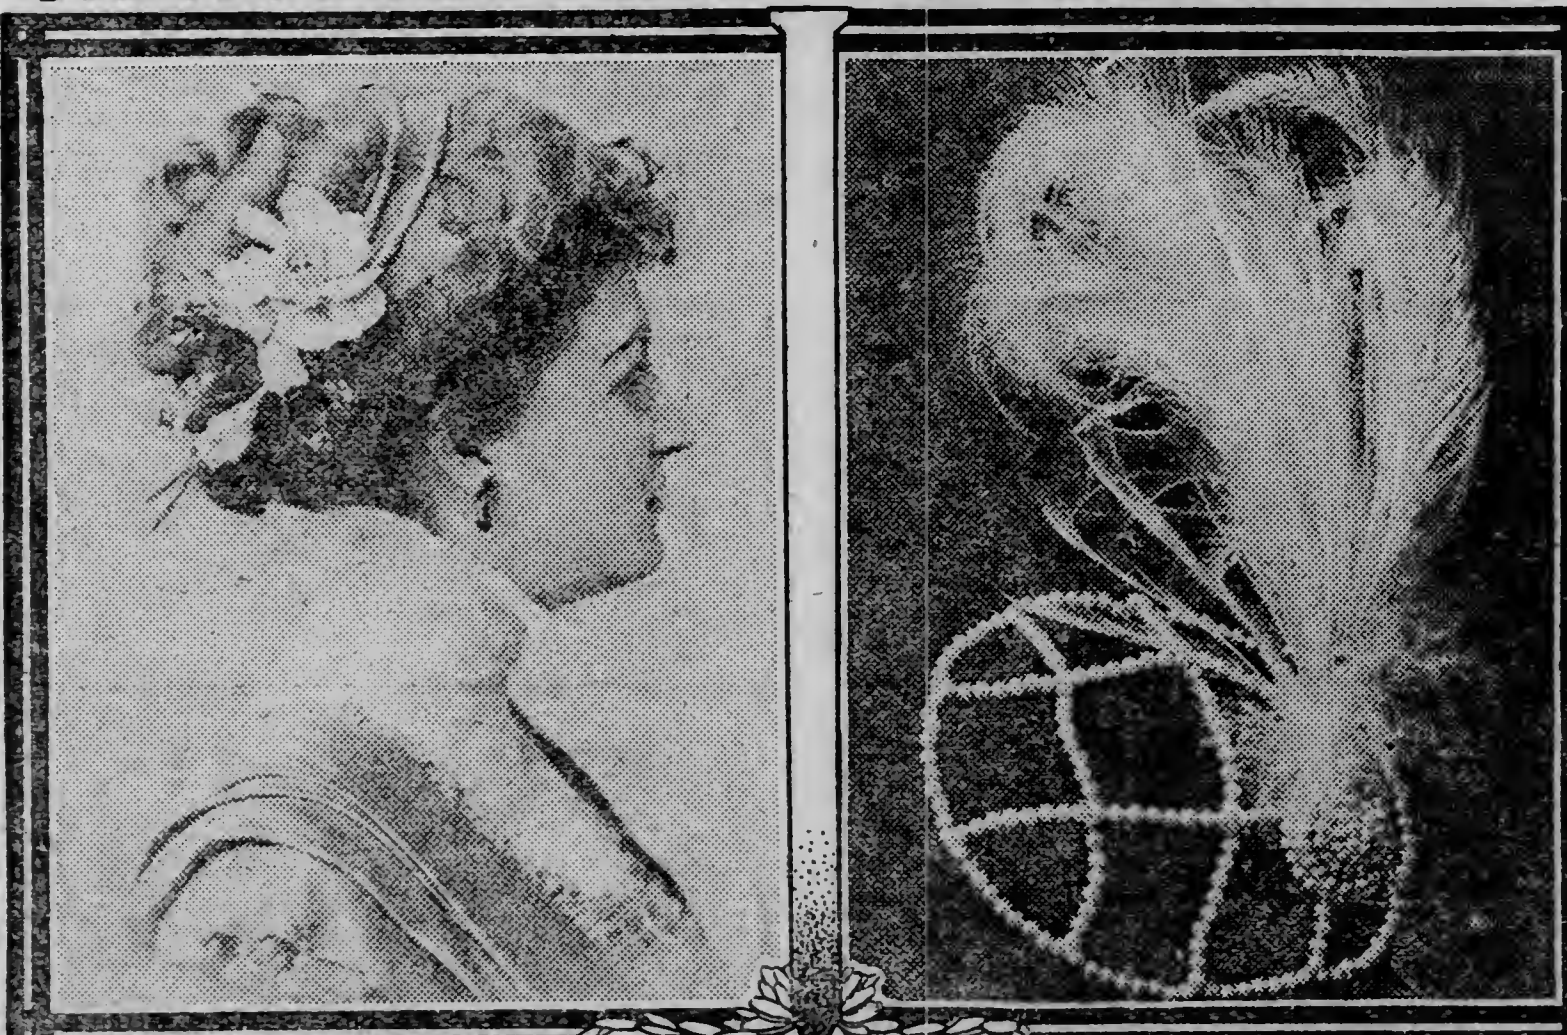

That the parted hairdressing is on the way is certain, though this demure style has not been taken up to any extent this winter. Parted hair is very hard to arrange, for unless the face is youthful and the hair itself vigorous, thick and kept in perfect condition, parted locks are apt to suggest a forlorn, intellectual or middle-aged appearance—all directly opposed to the notions of Dame Mode.

Miss Julie Opp, in her new play, is introducing a very charming parted hairdressing, the loosely waved locks being knotted with seeming carelessness low in the neck. With this hairdressing Miss Opp wears a double fillet of metal, set with pearls, two round pearl cabochons resting against the knot of hair at either side. Miss Mary Garden also is affecting this ultra-simple style of hairdressing—a sure indication that it will soon prevail in this country, for every dressy vagary of this beautiful actress is quickly noted and imitated by fashionable women.

With her parted hairdressing Miss Garden wears a forehead fillet, made of a string of pearls which encircle the head, ending in a clasp in the middle of the brow. This barbaric style will, no doubt, be copied by many women with regular features, but the mode is too severe to be safely essayed by any but a beauty.

A very dainty coiffure ornament for the parted hairdressing is the Juliet cap of pearls. A little shell cap of wires over which imitation pearl beads are strung fits down closely over the top of the head, and from a cushion of the pearls at one side a graceful feather spray sweeps upward and backward with charming effect.

HOW MADAM MODE ARRANGES HER HAIR FOR THE EVENING

Artificial Flowers are a Craze Just Now

The Little Juliet Cap of Roped Pearls

No matter how the result is achieved, one's tresses simply must look luxuriant. Whether the gentle ministrations of the hairdresser will be required to cke out nature's provision depends not only on the quantity of the hair, but upon its quality. There is hair of such virile, electric character that very little of it may be made to go a very long way. Curly locks, of course, always look twice as thick as they really are. But if the coiffure, by hook or crook—or the kindly curling tongs—cannot be made to assume the proper generous proportions the effect must be achieved by some other means.

Dusting the hair with talcum powder mixed with orris is a quick and easy way to make it seem thicker. The powder should be sprinkled over the unbound hair and rubbed lightly into the scalp. Then, with quick, firm strokes of the brush the loose powder should be brushed through the hair and out. After this treatment the hair will be soft and fluffy, but the after effect will be to clog the roots and make the hair heavy and unmanageable, and if the powder dusting method is resorted to often, the locks must have frequent shampooing.

However luxuriant the tresses appear, the effect of the completed coiffure—even for very formal occasions—must suggest elaboration. The extreme "Psyche" and exaggerated "binkley" arrangement of puffs and curls, copied from a series of popular newspaper cartoons, have been confined to the chorus girl type. The sleekly beautiful coiffures on smart heads at the opera and fashionable weddings never for an instant suggest an obvious advertisement of the hairdresser's capability. In fact the supreme art of hairdressing now expresses simplicity and naturalness. But the naturalness, it must be remembered, is of the youthful sort; the locks, to be correct, must have the life and spring and sun-kissed coloring of youth, the burnished sheen which only young hair—and hair most religiously cared for—ever possesses.

The favored evening hairdressing this winter are the Greek knot, with filleted bands across the top of the head, and the dainty Le Brun coiffure with a tumbled mass of merry curls on the crown of the head. This latter style is extremely becoming to the plump and matronly face. Pretty little Miss Billie Burke wears her double red-gold curls in this fashion; and very bashful and charming is the effect—as though thoughtful mother had lifted her tiny daughter's mop of curls clear of the little neck and tucked them up in a sunny, bobbing mass on the top of the small head. Sometimes the pretty knot of curls or puffs which are used to achieve this effect are surrounded by a band of metal studded with semiprecious stones, or a ribbon "snood" is tied around the high hairdressing with a small bow at one side.

One of today's photographs shows a modified Le Brun hairdressing enriched by two twisted ribbon fillets, with a waxen cannella with its glossy leaves arranged low at one side.

The large single dovert, worn just back of the ear is a favorite style with younger women, and many of the debutantes wear a big pink rose tucked in the hair at one side, another pink rose nestling in the low décolletage of the gown. While a white satin dinner frock, made for a young matron, the modiste sent home a hair ornament which was simply a coil of silver gauze ribbon ending at one side under a big silver rose which was to be worn just back of the left ear. At the other end of the ribbon was a round cushion button of silver filagree.

This notion of completing the evening gown with an appropriate coiffure ornament comes from Paris, where every exquisite frock intended for formal indoor wear is accompanied by a dainty hair ornament to match. A sea green net draped over chiffon and with panels of rose and silver embroidery had a straight fillet of silver ribbon for the

WOMAN'S fight for a larger economic and political life, which in the year just ended placed several of the most violent agitators of this cause in British prisons, has developed many remarkable leaders of whom the world really knows little. Although some of these women may have attracted public notice as lecturers or authors, their personal struggles and triumphs, by which they have won recognition, are for the most part unknown.

Like most great men who have become leaders of thought, the champions of the woman's rights movement have climbed to positions of prominence through their own energy and self-sacrifice. Most of them began the struggle in youth. Although not so warlike as their British cousins, American women are exerting a world-wide influence for the cause of their sex. For example, at the head of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, which now comprises active co-workers in sixteen different countries, is an American, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

Like Bojva A. Lockwood, Mrs. Catt prepared for the struggle of obtaining for women greater rights by mastering the legal profession herself. Like Lillie Devereux Blake and Ida Husted Harper, she underwent the hardships of journalism to learn how to express her ideas so that the reading public might grasp their full force. At the age of 15 Mrs. Catt first evidenced the chief ambition of her life by trying to convert her father and mother to woman's suffrage. On finding her efforts unavailing, she renewed her arguments with still more verily for her "dangerous" ideas. It was not until years afterward that they became her followers.

One of the chief elements in Mrs. Catt's success in persuading men to her beliefs is consummate tact. She has learned always to avoid any show of antagonism, no matter how great the provocation. Some say this trait of her character has been developed by two marriages. In 1884 she became the wife of Lewis Chapman, a prominent member of the Mason City Republic of Mason City, Iowa. She already was well known in the community as Carrie Lane, who studied law, taught school, and wrote for the newspapers of Mason City. Her husband and wife became joint owners of the Mason City Republic, and both worked hard and late turning out "copy." So great was the strain on Mr. Chapman that he sold the paper and went to the Pacific coast, where he died shortly afterward of typhoid fever. Thrown on her own resources, the young widow courageously sought employment as a reporter on a San Francisco newspaper, a kind of work which women never had entered in that city before.

While exploring the social bypaths of San Francisco as a newspaper woman, the future head of the International Woman Suffrage alliance was impressed so greatly by the wretched condition of the working class of women that she determined to devote all her energies thereafter in their behalf. She maintained then as now that all women had the ballot they could obtain relief from economic oppression. Legislatures whose members depended on the votes of women for their election, she said, would enact laws that would put the truer sex on the same business level with men.

Pursuing the reporter's desk for the lecture platform, Mrs. Chapman started out to convert the country. She found an early and staunch friend in Mrs. Margaret Campbell, a suffragist of Iowa, who at the time was carrying on an active campaign in that state. Mr. Campbell recognized her talent as a speaker, and induced her to take the stump.

With Mrs. Catt's second marriage came wealth, which enabled her to extend her work tremendously. By means of assistants she developed a voluminous correspondence with people all over the world, answering in the course of the year more than 10,000 letters. She became the wife of G. W. Catt in 1890. Mr. Catt was president of a large company of engineers and contractors. He greatly sympathized with his wife's work, and gave liberally to woman's suffrage. They lived happily until Mr. Catt's death in 1902.

When Susan B. Anthony resigned from the presidency of the American Suffrage association, Lillie Devereux Blake was suggested for the vacancy by the former head of the organization. Nevertheless, Mrs. Catt was elected to the place because of her greater experience and training.

In 1904 Mrs. Catt was succeeded by the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw. While head of the National association Mrs. Catt increased its income eightfold. Those who expect to stop in Mrs. Catt the typically mannish, short-haired, long-faced woman suffragist, that is caricatured in the papers, will be disappointed. She once was traveling in a railroad train across Kansas on a lecture tour, when she overheard two men talking about her. "I'll bet Mrs. Catt is an ugly, sour-faced woman," one of the men said. "The other acquiesced to this diagnosis, and added: 'Now, my style of woman is more like the brown-haired one over there; that one in the stylish dress with the long hair and the eyes.'"

One of the men later made the acquaintance of the stylish stranger, who, upon leaving the train, said laughingly: "It may interest you to know that I am Mrs. Catt."

Mrs. Catt never refrains from joking at men who arouse her sense of humor, but always throws these lances with her usual tactfulness. From the lecture platform she once was singing the injustice of ignorant men keeping the ballot away from educated women, when for illustration she said: "A census-taker once came to my home to inquire very particularly about all the men in the household. As he turned away I suggested that he take my name, as I helped to support the family. After learning that I lectured and wrote, he jotted this down in his book, 'Otherness and Lockwood.'"

Rev. Anna Shaw, a self-made woman, from the pulpit, instead of the bench, the Rev. Anne H. Shaw rose to the presidency of the N. A. W. S. A. By Irish English, she has become an American, as shown by her tremendous energy and capacity for work. She was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1830. When 25 she was graduated from Boston university, where she studied the Methodist Episcopal church at Hingham, Mass., the church in which Mrs. Shaw was ordained.

Had it not been for her indomitable ambition Miss Shaw might have been content with a life of quietude. She came to the United States in 1858, and for a time lived in the household of a family of New York weekly, the future suffragist obtained the only reading of her childhood. After she got hold of books, from which she learned so fast that when she was 15 she became a teacher in the district school. But she wanted a broader education than the backwoods could afford, and accordingly, she saved her wages until she had enough to enter the theological department of Boston university.

She has developed since in fighting the battles of woman suffrage—was evidenced in her struggle for ordination in the Methodist Episcopal church. On leaving the theological school she asked the New England council to permit her to be ordained. Her request was rejected. The general conference in 1880 would be ordained. Accordingly, she went to the Methodist Protestant church, which received her with open arms, and in which she has remained. In 1888 she took the degree of M. D. at the Boston university. She was elected president of the N. A. W. S. A. in 1904. Of her Frances E. Willard once said:

"America does not contain a more loyal and devoted adherent to the cause of woman's rights." Of a wholly different type of suffragist is Agnes Repplier. She has preferred the pen to the lecture platform. Of late Miss Repplier has been writing articles for a Philadelphia newspaper, but her real forte is the essay. It was the essay entitled "Agrippina" which has filled her home with cats. Agrippina was a favorite feline pet of the author, and so also was Nero, Agrippina's son. From all parts of the world the readers of the cat essay began sending in cat memorials, until they crowded every spare nook of Miss Repplier's apartments. She received real cats, bronze cats, china cats, wood cats and pictures of cats from Cairo, Budapest, Munich, Dresden, Japan and China. James, a genuine mummy cat from the Nile valley, is her mascot, and she takes him with her almost everywhere.

Miss Repplier's early education was not developed under a forced draft. She says that she did not know her letters until after she was 9, and then she learned them by laboring over a brown book, with two pink cupids on the cover, entitled "Reading Without Tears." So soon as she could read she did little else. One of her childhood duties was to dust the old-fashioned, dingy parlor of her Philadelphia home, but she never got further than a certain table in one corner, where were piled books by Wordsworth, Tennyson, Moore, Frances Sargent Osgood, Byron and Scott. "Childie Harold" particularly fascinated her, and many times her mother, who had tried hard to teach her to be a housewife, would find the little girl curled up on the floor absorbed in the adventures of the melancholy wanderer.

Her essay, "Children, Past and Present," which she sent to the Atlantic Monthly, won the notice of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, then its editor. Encouraged by this success, Miss Repplier devoted herself to the pen still more assiduously, and in a few years got her present enviable position in the modern literary world as one of its most finished essayists. Yet Miss Repplier says she finds it a tremendous labor to write, often taking three weeks to write a short essay. She says she should like to write novels, but fears she would starve to death before completing the first one.

A long and hard battle for woman suffrage has been waged by Lillie Devereux Blake, now in her 74th year. She has been active in the woman suffrage movement before the New York legislature, and on one of her visits to Albany she persuaded Theodore Roosevelt, then an assemblyman, to vote for an equal suffrage bill. "Spoken as a young man should speak," she said, "commending his promise, but the bill never got through."

Like Mrs. Catt, Mrs. Blake has experienced the treadmill training of journalism. She was the Washington correspondent for the New York Evening Post at the outbreak of the Civil war, and has done much newspaper work since, finding time also to write much of her own. Her death in 1891, serious vein. Among the achievements of her career was the inauguration of the movement to admit women to Columbia university, which resulted in the founding of Barnard college. Mrs. Blake also has worked for joint guardianship of children for mother and father, school suffrage for women, the appointment of women as census enumerators and police matrons, pensions for war nurses and seats for saleswomen. For eleven years she was president of the New York State Woman Suffrage association, and in 1900 she was elected to the National legislative league, of which she has since been president.

An indefatigable worker. Although wealthy enough simply to live, Ida Husted Harper has worked hard and unceasingly for woman's suffrage as an author and journalist because of the love of the cause she champions. She is capable of doing an immense amount of work. At one time, when she was traveling on a lecture tour and speaking at different places, she wrote eleven letters for eleven different newspapers each week.

That Mrs. Harper is a woman journalist of an unusual type is shown by her ability to direct the Terre Haute (Ind.) Daily News as its managing editor. At the time the city was red hot with a municipal campaign, Mrs. Harper formed an independent ticket of the tickets of the two big parties. Every man she nominated was elected. It was in California, a state which has produced many women thinkers, that Mrs. Harper plunged most vigorously into the suffrage movement. When she went to the Pacific coast to place her daughter, Winnifred, in the Stanford university, Susan B. Anthony asked her to take charge of the woman suffrage campaign in that state in 1896. With her characteristic energy she communicated that winter with the 250 newspapers in the state which were in favor of the suffrage. Miss Anthony was so pleased that she asked Mrs. Harper to write her biography.

A veteran suffragist is Julia Ward Howe, who took up arms for women in 1848, and has been fighting for them on the lecture platform, from the pulpit and in the press ever since. Two years ago, when she was 87, she delivered a speech in Italy in Boston at the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the death of Columbus. If Belva A. Lockwood, long before she became a woman's rights champion had followed the lines of least resistance she doubtless would have dug potatoes and shelled corn instead of running for the presidency in 1884 and 1888. She was born on a farm at Royalton, near Buffalo, and her first husband was a farmer by the name of Uriah McNail. Upon his death the widow determined to obtain an education. She went to Geneva college, then taught school in Lockport.

to raise funds to study law. On being refused admittance to the Columbia Law school, she entered the Columbia University Law school. At last having obtained the passage of her own bill through congress admitting her to the Court of Claims, and having carried her fight up to the United States supreme court, she forced her way into the Virginia courts as a practitioner.

Two College Presidents Among The Leaders. Two presidents of woman colleges have exerted strong influences in behalf of the suffrage movement. They are Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke and Miss M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr. Miss Woolley has a more Biblical turn of mind than many other suffragists, due to her early training. The daughter of the Rev. Joseph W. Woolley of Pawtucket, R. I., she later became the head of the department of Biblical history and literature of Wellesley college. Because of her kindly manners she is most popular with the young women under her.

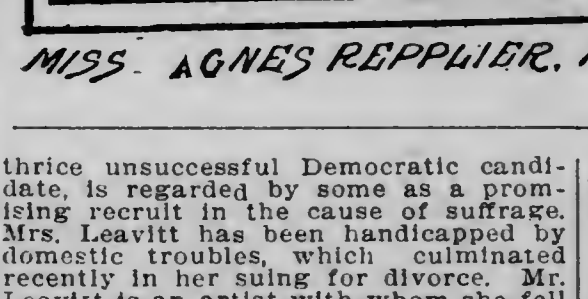

Here is an example of her gentle tact by which she has won the cooperation of students. On day in chapel Miss Woolley made an appeal for a family that she said was very dear to her. It was large and ambitious and desirous of rising in the world, but failed because so down-trodden. The girls were immediately interested and ready to do what they could. Then she explained that she referred to the grass of the campus, which could not grow because the girls made short cuts across the lawns. The down-trodden family prospered after that.

Miss Woolley's activities are many outside of her work as a college president. She is a member of many organizations, an education and advancement of women, among them being the Rhode Island Society for Cooperative Education of Women, the American Social Science association, and the Young Women's Christian association.

In the writing of books President Thomas of Bryn Mawr has devoted much of her spare time. She was made the first woman trustee of Cornell in 1895, having been graduated from this institution in 1877. Among her works are "The Education of Women," and "Should the Higher Education of Women Be Free From That of Men?" Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of the # Stocks Freely Offered and Copper Industries Were Especially Weak.

New York, Jan. 30.—While opening prices today showed a mingling of small gains and losses, the downward tendency was most perceptible. New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Brooklyn Transit and Pacific Mail declined large fractions. The trading showed a moderate degree of activity. Prices receded in all directions and stocks came upon the market in considerable volume. The copper industry was especially affected. A perceptible fall of over 3 points in Tennessee Copper contributed largely to the weakness. Chicago, Calumet & Aiton fell 1/4; Anaconda, 3, and Amalgamated Copper, 1. Canadian Pacific, 1/2.

The market closed somewhat irregular and about 1/2 lower. Prices in the second hour receded, the depression being interspersed with rallies. The decline in the Northwestern, Utah Copper, Brooklyn Transit and Pacific Mail, and the decline in the Tennessee Copper, contributed largely to the weakness. Chicago, Calumet & Aiton fell 1/4; Anaconda, 3, and Amalgamated Copper, 1. Canadian Pacific, 1/2.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR SUPERIOR STREET

Great Prospects for Builders on City's Main Thoroughfare—Predicted Boom is Delayed, But Will Come Yet—Wariness of Owners Puts Crimp in Real Estate Market.

It is fitting and proper that the industrial and commercial development of a city should affect its main street, and just now Superior street is attracting more attention than any other thoroughfare from those who see the growth of a community reflected in its buildings, and the prices business property brings in the open market.

While apartment houses and residences to accommodate the increases in Duluth's population are being erected all over the city during the coming season, artisans of the builders' trade will hold forth all season on Superior street. There is work enough already planned and announced to keep a large force busy. But that is only a portion of the whole. The work in sight to come, but not made public, is no inconsiderable amount, and the builders are anxiously waiting for further disclosure.

The development of Superior street will not be held back by the fact that much of the property is in the hands of Eastern people. Easterners seem to take just as much—if not more—interest in Duluth as Duluthians, and they are ever ready to invest their money in a city which they know is growing and has a great future before it. At least a half-dozen buildings, for which plans are now being prepared are to be erected with Eastern capital, and they will surely go through during the coming summer.

"The high prices that are being paid on Superior street indicate the faith of investors, especially capitalists in real estate, for it takes a capitalist to purchase Superior street property. It takes men of experience, men who have made money, therefore, men of good judgment," said T. W. Wahl, yesterday. "I realize fully that all men are not capitalists, but Superior street is not the only property that can be bought and sold, and very strange to say, outlying property has scarcely increased in price. This is a peculiar condition, especially so as during the last five years prices on Superior street have increased from $400 to $600 a foot to $2,000 to $2,500 a foot. Big business month of January. Owners don't want to sell. There are plenty of prospective buyers in the market. Inquiries from outside people with capital to invest are received at every real estate office in the city, and there is no doubt but that Duluth is attracting the attention it merits in other parts of the country. But Duluth owners are holding their prices up. Real estate dealers say that most of the prices demanded are based on future, not present values. The man who is willing to take what his property is worth today, rather than what it may be worth years from now, doesn't want to sell, they say. Neither will prospective buyers offer more than present day values, so there is a difference of opinion that results in many deals falling through.

The big deal of the past week was the transfer of the two-story building at 17 West Superior street from Mary Allen Austin to Lillie A. McDonald. The property is described as part of lot 2 West Superior street, Duluth proper, first division, and the lot has a frontage of 24 1/2 feet. The building is a two-story brick, the first floor being occupied by the Model Clothing company. The price paid was $45,000. John Stephenson acted for the buyer and G. G. Dickerman for the seller.

The Lakeside Land company is preparing to keep Lakeside in the limelight as the suburb of moderate priced homes again during the coming year. Lakeside has been in the limelight for several years past and has been growing constantly. After the land adjoining the car line had been built up, the extension was northward and it will go farther north during the coming year.

Most of the houses along the car line were built at a cost of about $5,000. Up on Wyoming street, where the Lakeside Land company had sewer and water connections installed during the past year, a number of new houses will be built during the coming season. To be built during the coming season, to cost, including the lots, between $3,000 and $5,000 each. The houses will be within the means of those who cannot purchase the more expensive houses built to order and there will undoubtedly be a strong demand for them.

The last house built by the company last year sold during the past week. It is at 1123 Robinson street and was purchased by J. P. Denyes for $5,200.

There was a little more activity among the architects during the week and orders were received for a number of residences in the East end district. Much of their energy, however, was not announced. Radcliffe & Price are preparing plans for a new home for Capt. H. I. Fay at the corner of Twenty-first avenue east and Superior street. It will be a two-story brick and terra cotta building to cost about $10,000. Radcliffe & Price are also preparing plans for a flat building on George carline on West Third street, near Seventh avenue west. The building

"LIVE IN ONE AND RENT THE OTHER."

DOUBLE HOUSE COSTING $5,000

The above illustration shows an interesting design for a small double house of frame construction. To a family of small means, who desire a home and a source of income through the investment of their capital, this design should be of interest. Built on a moderate priced lot, enough rental would be received from one-half of the building to pay a fair interest on the total investment. The exterior is attractively treated with siding and shingles, simplicity being the keynote of the design. Small paned windows and their grouping aid in giving the building its individuality of design. The low roof and wide eaves add much to its attractiveness. The plan is compact and roomy in arrangement. Each house has six rooms and large closets. The entrance is through a vestibule into a hall, which has direct communication with the kitchen. The stairs are wide and easy of ascent. A closet opens on the stairway landing. A large corner fireplace, low mantel windows, and a deep window-seat makes the living room a very cozy room. The dining room is at the rear of the living room and connected to it by sliding doors. The connection to the kitchen is through a large pantry. The kitchen is large and well lighted. The basement stairs go down under the main stairway, from a small rear hall. In the second story are three good-sized bedrooms, each having a large closet. The bath room and linen closet open into the corridor. With a good grade of finish, hardwood floors, stone or concrete basement, hot water heating, and plumbing, a double house of this description would cost to erect in Duluth, or vicinity, $5,000.
